DuPont: Water supply unharmed

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

Officials at the DuPont DeLisle Plant said Thursday that they think a lack of information and awareness are the main reasons for negative perceptions of the plant throughout many areas of the community. They would like to help with that problem, they said, by reminding the community members that they are available to answer any questions that anyone may have about the plant.

"We will continue our open door policy in the community and do everything we can do to allow people to understand the facts and processes of our operation," said plant manager Patricia Nichols.

Nichols recently replaced Aldo Morell as plant manager and describes herself as a "country girl" with a real respect and love for the environment.

Because of that, she says, she is concerned that there may have been some misunderstandings at the recent public meeting held by the Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry (ATSDR) on June 5, concerning findings on groundwater contamination. She brought unit manager Donald Dees and public affairs officer James Foster along to help clarify some issues.

Members of the community had expressed concern over groundwater contamination that exists under the plant. ATSDR Health Scientist James Durant had Puppies at the Waveland Animal shelter were the center of attention when girls from the First United Methodist Church in Gulfport visited the shelter on Thursday. The fifth and sixth graders were a part of the Lynn Meadows Discovery Center's Performing Hearts Summer Camp. Christian education director from First United and Tonya Hays from the discovery center accompanied the girls. The purpose of the summer camp is to teach a love for community service to children, said Hays. Their philosophy follows one of the tenants of the teachings of Dr. Suzuki, Hays said, who taught that we should nurture great talents and beautiful spirits in children.

Each day the children go to a different location in surrounding communities and offer their help. Children are also encouraged to come up with their own projects.

Deputies nab three men in 'burglary ring'

Sheriff: Bust could clear up string of break-ins in Hancock, Pearl River

BY GEOFF BELCHER
News Editor

Hancock Sheriff's investigators last week made three arrests in connection with what they describe as a burglary ring responsible for about 15 break-ins in Pearl River and Hancock counties, and the theft of thousands of dollars in merchandise.

Sheriff Steve Garber said that deputies were responding to a burglar alarm at GB&D ATV Repair on Hwy. 43 South when "Deputy Push Phillips spotted a blue van traveling south on Hwy. 603, which fit the reported description of the suspect's vehicle."

Garber said the vehicle pulled into the parking lot of a Kiln business, with Phillips following right behind. There were three men in the van.

"After each of the suspects gave him a different account of what they were doing in the area," Garber said, Phillips "believed that they were involved with the break-in" at the ATV repair shop. He called investigators, who went to the scene. Deputy Stacy Wilson confirmed that someone had broken into the business.

Phillips and Deputy Manor Ladner arrested the three suspects, Daniel Cottrell, 18, of Carriere; and brothers Lester Quintana, 24, and Jesus M. Quintana,

Harrison deputies probe drowning

ECHO STAFF REPORT

Officers of the Harrison County Sheriff's Department are investigating the Wednesday drowning death of a Kiln woman as a potential homicide.

The body of Shirley M. Evans, 54, was found floating face-down in the Mississippi Sound in Biloxi on Wednesday by a Harrison County beach clean-up crew. Authorities said she had been to visit her son, who lives at Biloxi, and was last seen at about 7:30 p.m. Tuesday.

Harrison County Gary Hargrove told reporters last week that an autopsy revealed drowning was the actual cause of death. Evans

Bay council ponders historic preservation

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Staff Writer

A key leader of area historic preservation was thrilled with what he said was progress last week on a long-delayed ordinance.

"I think it's the most productive meeting we've had in the past seven years," Charles Gray said when a public workshop adjourned Wednesday.

What's needed for success, he said, is "finding the balance between what the city wants to be happy and what the property owners want to be happy. And, boy, we heard from everyone tonight. I have great hopes that the council will eventually pass it."

Citizens threw questions and concerns over historic preservation to Bay St. Louis City Council members Wednesday, kicking off what may be a long and contentious process to codify some new regulations.

Around three dozen area residents turned out for a public workshop on a proposed Historic Preservation Ordinance. It's been in the making — and on and off the shelf — for around seven years.

Council president James C. Thriffley III said the proposed ordinance under discussion amounts to "a little sample" of what may be finally crafted and put into place. "We just have to start somewhere."

Thriffley's Ward 2 is largely characterized by historic buildings. He's taken the lead among council members to see that some protective regulations are put together and enacted. Still, Thriffley is cautious to acknowledge the "sensitive" nature of establishing the new system.

He urged residents to keep the proposed regulations under study, and direct their questions to City Council in coming weeks.

Most likely the ordinance now on the table will be re-drawn to forge a compromise version, he said, leaving "everybody happy" with the final form.

That may be down the road a bit. Two participants in the workshop who voiced serious challenges to the proposed regulations portrayed them, as over-reaching, and probably the groundwork for a large bureaucracy ahead.

"I have severe reservations about it," said Robert Kane of McDonald Realty. The ordinance proposed "gives too much discretionary authority to too few people," he said. He added that the newly proposed Historic Preservation Commission likely would mushroom from a modest start.

"I'm all for historic preservation," said Kane "but I wouldn't want to obligate everyone in this town" to be subjected to "very rigid" regulations.

Another citizen said he faced an "over zealous bureaucrat" administering the regulations.

Meanwhile, Franya Etheridge raised a series of questions, saying the new regulations would effectively hold owners of historic properties "to a higher standard who take out building permits for alterations, or demolitions of properties in newly established historic districts, would need to get the commission's approval. In addition, new construction in historic districts would be under the commission's advisory system as well.

Gray noted that none of the commission's rulings would be final — City Council would have say in contested cases. He also said the goal of the preservation system is not to make modern houses look new, but to maintain the "living architecture" that characterizes Bay St. Louis.

There are many houses and buildings within the historic area, said, that were built in the 50's, 60's and 70's. Those should be respected for their contribution to the community picture, Gray added.

Another advocate of the proposed ordinance said he doesn't understand the "fear" voiced by some over establishing a preservation ordinance. Similar regulations are in place in many cities throughout Mississippi, he said, and work quite well.

It seemed Wednesday there may be a move to re-do the extensive inventory of historic places in town, since a roster of 690 such residences and buildings is about 24 years old. Likewise, at least some of the five historic districts the city established in 1979 probably will be redrawn in coming months, if city leaders plan to set the stage for enacting a preservation ordinance.

As it stands, Bay St. Louis has 576 structures listed on the National Register of Historic Places. That's a roster the federal government keeps, but it has little practical impact on homeowners.

Todd Sanders, local government assistance coordinator for the Mississippi Department of Archives and History, said Bay St. Louis could join 29 other entities in the state that have been designated as Certified Local Governments, with established preservation ordinances and districts.

That would qualify Bay St. Louis for state help with design review guidelines, and qualify the city for grant money to survey its historic properties and potentially restore some of them.

Ward 3 council member Tom Farve said he expects council's deliberations will be lengthy. But Farve, who also represents a district with many historic properties, said he expects council will establish some new preservation regulations.

In the best case, he said, council would create a historic district along the beachfront for starters.

Wednesday's meeting took place in the historic city Depot, which the city restored several years ago.

The proposed ordinance provides for a citizen commission to oversee the proposed regulations. Citizens who take out building permits for alterations, or demolitions of properties in newly established historic districts, would need to get the commission's approval. In addition, new construction in historic districts would be under the commission's advisory system as well.

than everyone else."

There were proponents in the audience as well, including Gray, the executive director of the Hancock County Historical Society. He has been on two city-appointed committees that have worked over the years to draft the proposed ordinance.

"No requirements will be made by the commission" that's proposed, he said. "They can't go around and say you have to do this and that."

Bay mayor to become president of MML

BY MARY G. SEILEY
Staff Writer

Bay St. Louis Mayor Eddie Favre becomes president of the Mississippi Municipal League on July 2 during its upcoming conference in Biloxi.

He's the first Bay mayor to hold the position since former Mayor John Scafide Sr. served at the helm in the mid 1960s.

Favre has served as the League's first vice president for the past year, and will elevate to the top spot currently held by Baldwin

Mayor Robert M. Coggins Jr.

The League's annual conference draws some 3,000 people annually to the Gulf Coast for several days of seminars, speeches, workshops and camaraderie. The main sessions will be held at the Mississippi Coast Coliseum, with auxiliary conference sessions at the Beau Rivage.

This year's events include a "Day in the Bay" for MML spouses on July 1, which is hoped to be a boon to local merchants. Favre, who's in his fourth term as the Bay's mayor, said the spouse's event could entice several hundred people to the city for shopping, tours and dining.

Among other things, the MML annual conference forges the group's annual legislative agenda for the coming year. Favre said the president represents the MML positions at hearings of the state Legislature, and represents Mississippi cities at the National League of Cities.

Clermont Civic Association still fighting restaurant plans

Public hearing rescheduled for July 23 at 10 a.m.

BY BENNIE SHALLBETTER
Staff Writer

The Clermont Harbor Civic Association is still fighting a special exception request by Christian Vizzini which would enable him to open a restaurant at the corner of Clermont Harbor Boulevard and Railroad.

A public hearing that was scheduled for June 11 had to be postponed because Vizzini was not notified of the meeting.

A registered letter sent to his last known address was returned unclaimed. The hearing was rescheduled for July 23 at 10 a.m. District 2 Supervisor Rocky Pullman said the oral notice given on Wednesday would be considered an official notice to all parties.

The Association's spokeswoman Millie Usher said that rules and regulations were made to provide comfort, safety and order and should not be changed at the whim of zoning officials.

Vizzini, who made a brief appearance after he was contacted by phone, said he just wanted to provide the community with a nice place to eat. He said he had planned an upscale seafood/oyster bar type establishment for the location.

The R-2 rated location has been used for commercial ventures in the past.

In other business:
• A public hearing was set for July 23 concerning a considered amendment to the county road map. Compton Engineering has concluded that James Head Rd. is a private road and should not be included on county maps. A resident on the road had asked that the road be included. The road is an extension of Albert Cuevas Rd. Albert Cuevas Rd and Road 302 may be added to county maps.

Bob Springer of Diamondhead said that residents of Hancock County should be offered the same cable service options as surrounding areas.

Springer said that surrounding areas are offered basic cable packages that cost between $7 and $13 for people who cannot afford more expensive packages.

An employee of Mediacom, which serves many areas in the county said that the company offers a broadcast basic package for $12.15 that usually allows the subscriber to get channels 2-13. The next level of packages begin at $44.95.

Cable One which serves Diamondhead and surrounding areas doesn't offer a basic package, said office manager, Beverly Young. Services with Cable One now currently start at $37.50 she said.

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce's June Business After Hours will be from 5 to 7 p.m. Thursday.

Host for the After Hours is Coast Electric Power Association and will be held in the Conference Room on Main Street behind the Shell Station.

Coast Electric always does a great job with their After Hours, as they have some very good snacks and refreshments.

The event is open to chamber members and guests.

As usual there will be several door prizes, so bring along a couple business cards.

This is a good time to renew old acquaintances in addition to make new ones.

There was a time when I felt I knew most of the folks in the area, but sure has changed, as new folks are moving in every day.

I hope to see you at Thursday's After Hours.

On next Saturday, June 21, there will be a special benefit for the Hancock County Little League Fastpitch Softball at Lakeshore field.

The event will take place at Lakeshore VFW Post 4808 on Lower Bay Road beginning at 10 a.m.

There will be fried and bar-b-que chicken dinners for take-outs, or dine-in, several raffles, a turkey shoot, and an auction. The will also be deliver of dinners available, to order dinners, or sign up for turkey shoot, call Packer at 467-5468, or Herb at 467-1291.

For the children there will be a spacewalk and dunking booth.

The league will be celebrating its 15 anniversary and reunion and invites all who played, coached, umpired or volunteered in some way, at either

McDonald Field in Bay St. Louis or at Lakeshore Filed, to stop by and receive a commemorative anniversary lapel specially designed for the league.

A political rally will also be held for candidates in the upcoming county elections to briefly speak.

Sounds like it will be a big time in Lakeshore next Saturday and helping a great girls sport.

If it sounds to good to be true, you can be assured in most cases that it is not true.

This is what I have heard over and over from law enforcement in my many years at The Echo.

Nowadays, many suspected SCAMS originate from African nations, not that there is the only place in the world where they come from, because many develop right here at home.

On Wednesday The Echo and also the First Baptist Church in Bay St. Louis received a letter addressed to the CEO, from a person claiming to be a Provincial Manager DBSA Bank of South Africa.

The story was that some foreign mining consultant/contractor deposited some $12.5 million in his branch and was killed in an auto accident and left no will, and no known relatives could be located.

So, the bank manager is seeking some foreigner to stand in as the next of kin, or relations to in all his official documents.

Anyway, Interim Chief Investigator Kenny Hurt of the Hancock County Sheriff's office, who got the letter sent to the church feels, the whole thing is in all probability just another big SCAM.

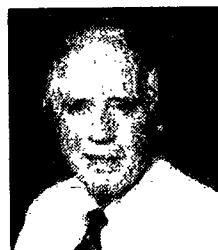

I just wonder how many people in the United States received a copy of the same letter

The Capitol -- a home away from home

Many still call it the "new" Capitol, even though the magnificent domed building celebrated its 100th birthday last week.

Since I spent a great many hours of my professional life inside the Capitol--I used to call it my home away from home--I had to help celebrate its birthday and have a piece of the birthday cake on a beautiful spring day.

In 1903 when the classical new Mississippi state-house was first dedicated, it was a monumental achievement for a state that not many years before had its economic resources and manhood drained by civil war.

Of course, stories abound how the $1,090,000 to build the Capitol was raised by a state lawsuit against the Illinois Central Railroad would today be regarded as a shake-down of the state's biggest corporation.

No matter, generations of Mississippians have looked with enormous pride upon the regal structure which is, in the judgment of this writer (who has seen many state capitols around the country), without peer.

Speakers for the centennial celebration, and those at other notable anniversaries of the grand old building in the last 20 years have noted the progress Mississippi has made in many areas over the century since it was initially dedicated.

Poetically, racial reconciliation--how white Mississippians live side by side with black Mississippians--the overriding social problem the state still struggles to solve, was 100 years ago cited by Methodist Bishop Charles Galloway in his keynote dedicatory address, as the core problem then facing the state.

Said Galloway: "In my judgment, there can never be any just and permanent settlement of this stupendous problem (race relations) that does not enlist the cordial and enlightened co-operation of the white people with whom the Negro must dwell forever."

He added: "I do insist that the Negro should have equal opportunity with every American citizen to fulfill in himself the highest purposes of an all-wise and beneficent Providence."

Obviously Bishop Galloway was an amazingly moderate spokesman at a time when racial demagogues such as James K.

There's too much cruelty to animals

Dear Editor:
I had an experience on a recent Sunday night in assisting a stray dog which points up the tremendous problem in our state of animal abuse and unwanted pets - I was driving to church in my home community near Jackson, and saw a brown and white boxer puppy standing by the road, so starved her ribs and backbone were visible.

I stopped the car, and the puppy came up, licked my hand, and got in. She had been seemingly abused by someone who'd left a collar on until it cut deep into her flesh, and was a ragged, pitiful sight.

Despite this, she was quiet and easy to transport. I located the Animal Rescue League's answering service on my cell phone; they got in touch with one of their dedicated members who called back quickly. I asked if there were any shelters or vets open at 7 p.m. Sunday, and she referred me to an emergency clinic near the Coliseum.

The vet staff accepted the dog and offered me klenex, for I was so horrified that anyone would do this to an animal that I burst into tears in their office. I train for the military and have seen severe sights, but the helpless does suffering simply got to me.

The vet explained that his was a group practice and his board did not allow him to treat the puppy for free, but he offered several options including taking her home and waiting until the shelters opened in two days.

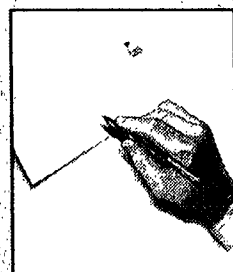

Not treating her was not considered, and the German Shepherd who lived at my house might not take kindly to a sick visitor, so I paid the $50, "Good Samaritan" fee and left the vet to examine her and decide whether to treat and refer to a no-kill shelter to euthanize. I didn't like that option, but couldn't-keep her myself. I called later, her wounds were so severe she had been put to sleep.

The vet pointed out several things in our conversation. He sees abused and abandoned pets weekly, and the problem is increasing because not enough dog owners have their puppies "fixed" to avoid overbreeding. But this was a case of extreme continued cruelty, beyond my ability to understand.

A number of the other cars had passed by this dog after I spotted her, during the time it took to turn around and go back none slowed down possibly because of the high cost of a rescue!

Mississippi needs two things, then: 1) more public awareness of the suffering of "extra, expendable" dogs and cats, with each community and county taking responsibility to pick up strays and refer to humane shelters, and 2) active encouragement for a free "turn in" program if the local vet will not treat for free.

This is so other "Good Samaritans" may stop, pick up an injured animal or call for assistance, AT NO COST - better than leaving them to suffer and starve on the roadside!

Whether a stray is adopted or mercifully put to sleep, I believe either is better than what I witnessed that Sunday evening. It's no longer an individual owner's problem - this affects our community's image in the eyes of potential employers which would locate here, and thus harm our job market and economy.

Besides, this state is well known as the Bible Belt - Believes all over the place, and surely we outnumber those who would cause such cruelty. Have we lost our compassion for the "least of these!"

An Open Letter from DuPont DeLisle

Dear valued friends and fellow citizens,

Over the past several days, much has been said and written about DuPont's operations in DeLisle. My purpose in sharing this letter with you, our neighbors and fellow citizens, is to clarify what we at DuPont DeLisle believe may be misconceptions about our plant's environmental processes.

In April, the Agency for Toxic Substances and Disease Registry (ATSDR) released a report of its findings on the agency's study of DuPont DeLisle's impact on groundwater in our community. The agency concluded that DuPont DeLisle is "No Public Health Hazard" for groundwater. ATSDR discussed their findings at a public meeting in Pass Christian on June 5.

Three other government agencies had previously reviewed our operations and potential links to groundwater. Like ATSDR, the US Environmental Protection Agency (EPA), the Mississippi Department of Environmental Quality (MDEQ) and the Mississippi State Department of Health (MSDH) all report that our operations do not impact current drinking water aquifers.

As the result of media reports about issues discussed at the ATSDR public meeting, questions have been raised in the community about the operation of our deep injection wells and about groundwater under the plant. Here are the facts about these two issues.

EPA recognizes deep injection wells, in certain locations like the Gulf Coast, as technologically superior environmental control systems. They are equipped with fail-safe technology designed to prevent any injected waste material from escaping the well's pipeline before it reaches the injection zone 10,000 feet below the Earth's surface - roughly two miles.

There are at least 10 layers of impermeable rock between the surface of the Earth and the injection zone where material is deposited. These layers are horizontally contiguous, that is, they are layers of rock that are many thousands of miles long and wide. Material deposited in the Earth through the deep injection wells cannot penetrate upward through these layers. Over time, the injected material neutralizes naturally and becomes a part of the sandstone formation into which it is injected.

Our records and analyses say that there has never been a case or situation where any material injected into a deep injection well at DeLisle has left the injection zone. During the June 5 public meeting, ATSDR was reported as stating that, during a 1996 incident, material was "migrating upward" in a deep injection well. This material, in fact, never left the permitted injection zone (8,000 to greater than 10,000 feet). The design and operation of our deep injection wells keeps the injected fluids in the injection tubing until it is emplaced in the injection zone.

Another incident reported by the media to which ATSDR referred in its discussion of their study occurred in 1984 while one of our deep injection wells was shutdown for maintenance. During one of the maintenance procedures, the pipeline was over pressurized, causing some pipe and the residual material in it to be dislodged. A monitoring well located less than 100 feet from the deep injection well showed no evidence of any groundwater contamination.

The second of the two issues that has raised questions concerns the groundwater under the plant. It is a matter of public record that our operations have had an impact at shallow levels, but well above community drinking water aquifers. There is an impermeable, natural barrier preventing this material from reaching the drinking water aquifers. Further, the natural flow of groundwater is away from any drinking water source.

We are working closely with EPA and MDEQ to conduct long term groundwater monitoring. In the opinion of EPA and MDEQ, the contamination will be diminished to levels below concern before it reaches the plant site's boundaries. DuPont DeLisle has an extensive network of monitoring wells from which we get ongoing data about the condition of these shallow levels.

The dedicated men and women of DuPont DeLisle understand that we operate with the consent of the community. DuPont employees and their families have invested their lives here. We work with you; worship with you; fish, hunt, play sports with you, and we serve with you to make our beautiful coast a better place.

I hope that this information helps clarify your understanding of our operations. The safety and health of employees and the community and our stewardship of the environment are, and will continue to be, our top priorities.

Sincerely yours,

Vardaman were prowling the Mississippi political landscape. How prescient were his words even today.

Memories. The centennial birthday of the majestic Capitol brings back to me a flood of memories, some good and some not-so-good, of events that I saw take place there in the nearly 40 years I was a habitue of its classic interior.

It's where I saw Robert Clark, the first African-American to sit in the Legislature since Reconstruction, take the oath of office as a state Representative in January, 1968.

Then four months later when he dejectedly stalked out of the Capitol after not being recognized to offer his first amendment during a raucous House night session, I followed him out in the rainy night and persuaded him not to quit.

It was where I saw state lawmakers, pushed by massive, lovable Gov. Hugh White, enact in 1953-54 the landmark Minimum Foundation Education program, a courageous first step by Mississippi to racially equalize educational opportunities, wipe out the hundreds of one and two-room schoolhouses and massively consolidate school districts.

Nearly 40 years later I would see lawmakers, urged by William Winter, enact the next educational landmark, the 1982 Education Reform Act, whose centerpiece was to establish free public kindergarten, the last state to do so.

On a Saturday afternoon in May, 1966, in the ornate ceremonial governor's office, I would see Paul Johnson put an end to a hypocritical and corrupt law that that for 58 years prohibited sale of liquor statewide.

After days of agonizing, Johnson signed into law a bill making liquor sales legal by local option and putting the state into the business of being the lone wholesaler of all liquor and wine sold in the state.

Memories of the ambivalence and absurdity of the state's "dry" law were revived at the centennial celebration last week, when the famed "Whiskey Speech" written by the late N.S. "Soggy" Sweat, a state lawmaker back in the prohibition era, was read former State Rep. Ed Perry, now the House clerk.

What passed as a Capitol press room back in 1947 when I first arrived as the Mississippi correspondent for the New Orleans Times-Picayune was little more than a 10 x 12 clothes closet near the Senate chamber. Only four reporters covering the Legislature, could jam together at tiny desks to pound out news copy on our manual typewriters.

Things got much better for us in the early 1950s when some interior renovation of the building was done, and the fourth floor of the Capitol, until then still unfinished and serving largely as a storage area, was redone, and we were moved up there to more spacious quarters.

Remember, the building had not yet been air conditioned, and the fourth floor, with skylights overhead was much like a florists' boathouse.

Secretary of State Heber Ladner, who in those days was custodian of the Capitol, decided what would go where in the cavernous building. Because Heber was a diehard Bilboite, he decided that a bronze statue of Sen. Theodore G. Bilbo, the notorious racial demagogue, would stand in the center of the Capitol's first floor rotunda.

It stayed there for some 25 years, becoming a symbol of racial divisiveness, until William Winter became governor. When the grand old building in 1981 underwent its $19 million renovation, Winter conveniently found an excuse to get the Bilbo statue out of sight.

Until the state in 1956 stopped executing convicts in a portable electric chair (called by many "old Sparky") the chair was kept hidden somewhere in the bowels of the Capitol. Good old Heber would have it clandestinely hauled out whenever it county needed it.

But Heber would never tell any of us exactly where the electric chair was hidden. And he refused to say what he did with it, even when the state could have made lots of money by selling it to one of the many buyers who offered big bucks for it after the state began use of a lethal gas chamber at Parchman Penitentiary.

And although no one other than I knew it, in the late 1950s I deposited my own version of a time capsule down the hollow core of one of the Capitol's structural columns, while a stone plate at the top of the column, inside the press room area was pulled off for some repair work.

I dropped a rolled up copy of The Times-Picayune, with a front page byline story of mine down the hole before workmen resealed it.

I suppose it will stay there forever.

DuPont -- no contamination

said at the meeting that it was his understanding that the contamination existed about 20 feet down and that contamination was migrating in the direction of the Bay of St. Louis rather than area water wells.

Foster confirmed Durant's statement that the contamination is moving in a southerly direction but, Foster said, the plant has monitoring wells around much of the perimeter of the plant - especially the south side that would tell them if the contamination moved off plant property. He said contamination has reached to a level of 60 feet below the surface of the plant site but, DuPont officials have no evidence that it has reached any further.

"We are certain that the contamination will not reach the Bay," said Foster, "because it is not moving fast enough and because as it spreads, it is neutralized and diluted."

"We understand that it will never leave the plant property," said Nichols.

Also, Foster said, there is a layer of hard clay that extends throughout the area which would prevent toxic waste contamination from seeping to deeper levels where wells exist. Pipes for area wells would have to be drilled through the clay, he said.

The source of the groundwater contamination came from a combination of the toxic waste deposited into a barrow pit on the plant site and an instance when a deep injection well blew up, said Durant in answer to a Pass Christian resident's question at the meeting.

Plant officials concur that contamination comes from the barrow pit, but say that the only evidence that they have found of a well blowing up was during a routine maintenance operation in 1984 when pressurization caused a tube to become dislodged and pop out of the well, causing some spillage. The amount of the spillage is unknown, said Nichols.

"But it definitely occurred during maintenance and not operation," she said.

Foster said a leak in a cement casing due to the use of the wrong kind of cement caused the leak in one of the deep wells that Durant mentioned at the meeting. Durant was explaining to the audience why one of the deep wells had been capped and redrilled in another direction under the ground. Durant said records show that toxic waste that escaped stayed well within the 8,000-to-10,000-foot injection zone allowed in regulations, in the Tuscaloosa layer of strata.

Dees confirmed this, saying also that the redrilling of the well was an accepted practice with deep well technology.

"We believe that we have the very best environmental processes and we believe they really work," said Nichols. "We feel we have done a great job and plan to continue to make safety and environmental stewardship our number one priority."

Over the next few months, the ATSDR will be continuing to look into the possibility of groundwater contamination. It has been asked to check more wells and add data to the preliminary study. The public is invited to comment on the study and provide information which may help the process. To do so, contact the ATSDR at 1-888-422-8737 and mention DuPont DeLisle. Comments on the groundwater study are due by July 9. If this is not long enough, the agency may grant an extension to the time if asked to do so. Anyone may ask for a time extension.

The ATSDR will continue to study the possibility of a pathway for contamination by air emissions and dioxin

Puppies

On Thursday they visited the shelter to bring dog food and play with the animals. Rainy weather prevented them from walking the dogs but the girls were able to play with the overwhelming number of puppies at the shelter who are waiting for adoption.

An earlier batch of about 15 puppies waiting at the shelter got a lucky break recently when they were sent to Maine with about 65 other puppies from other coast shelters. Waveland Shelter director Rene Lick said that a highly successful spay neuter program in Maine and other areas has actually resulted in a shortage of puppies. So those areas are importing puppies from other states.

The puppies were picked up by a bus and driven back to Maine. Transportation costs were paid for by the Friends of the Animal Shelter, she said. The operation was organized by the Humane Society of South Mississippi in this area.

Lick said she understood that each puppy had a home waiting in Maine. Hopefully the operation will take place at least twice a year, she said.

The shelter holds offsite adoptions twice a month at the K-Mart parking lot, but rain and extremely hot weather may prevent these efforts at least for part of the summer Lick said.

The adoptions are normally held on the second and forth Saturday's of the month, but this Saturday's adoptions have been canceled due to the Father's Day holiday. The shelter had been hoping to move to an inside location, but the store will be too busy for us to be inside this weekend, she said, and the weather is too bad to be outside.

Right now the Waveland shelter has at least 20 puppies available for adoption as well as several older dogs and cats and kittens. If you are interested in adopting a pet from the shelter call 467-0230 or visit the shelter at 322 Gulfside Dr. in Waveland.

30, both of Picayune. All three men were charged with the burglary of a commercial building. Jesus Quintana was also charged with possession of burglary tools.

On Friday morning, the owners of the High Tide restaurant on Hwy. 43 reported that their business had also been burglarized.

When investigators questioned the three suspects, Garber said, "one of them basically confessed."

The suspect's comments led investigators Matt Barnett, John Luther and André Fizer to Nicholson in Pearl River County, where they worked with deputies there to execute a search warrant and recovered items stolen in the High Tide break-in and as many as 15 separate Pearl River burglaries.

"It looks like they've been hitting Pearl River County pretty good and were starting to come our way," Garber said.

The Quintana brothers are being held in Pearl River County. Cottrell was booked at the Hancock County Justice Facility. No bond had been set at press time Saturday. The incident is still under investigation.

Local students attend O'Brian Youth program

THE SEA COAST ECHO

More than 200 high school sophomores are expected to commit at least 20,000 hours of volunteer service to communities across Mississippi in the coming months.

The 204 students, all graduates of the just-completed annual Hugh O'Brian Youth Leadership (HOBY) program in Jackson, now understand the importance of volunteer participation in community services that impact lives in their local areas.

"Can you imagine the impact these high school sophomores can have on their local communities and on our state through this outpouring of volunteer service?" said Mississippi HOBY chair Barbie Bassett of Madison.

The HOBY program, conducted annually in Jackson, is a part of the nationwide leadership training program for high school students created by actor Hugh O'Brian.

Its mission is to encourage high school sophomores to become active in volunteer activities designed to improve communities and the country.

At the same time, said Bassett, the seminar provides leadership development training for the students.

The program focuses on leadership, motivation, and volunteerism by exposing students to business, educational, and political leaders and by involving them, as part of their training, in service projects with such community organizations as the Salvation Army, Gateway Rescue Mission, the Mississippi Food Network, and similar other community service and charitable organizations in the Jackson area and in Mississippi.

"Through HOBY's Leadership for Service Program, HOBY participants are challenged to commit at least 100 hours of volunteer service in their home communities," Bassett said.

"With more than 200 students participating in this year's seminar," she added, "we can expect these high school sophomores to contribute at least 20,000 hours of volunteer service to communities and community service organizations across Mississippi."

HOBY students also have the opportunity to interact with Mississippi leaders including Bureau of Narcotics director Frank Melton and Time Magazine's "Person of the Year Cynthia Cooper.

Students are selected for participation in HOBY by their high schools with each public and private high school in Mississippi invited to select one outstanding student to take part in the program.

Area students who took part in this year's program and who will be volunteering for community service include Jory Coscia from Our Lady Academy, Greg Lamier from Bay High School, Stefan Sofianos from St. Stanislaus, and Kate Sullivan from Hancock High School.

In addition to the annual leadership seminars, HOBY graduates are eligible for over 85 college and university scholarships across the nation.

The Hugh O'Brian Youth Leadership Foundation was founded by the actor following a visit to Africa where he was inspired by a meeting with Dr. Albert Schweitzer. "One of the things Schweitzer said to me," explained O'Brian, "was that the most important thing in education is to teach young people to think for themselves.

From that inspiration, and with the support of others who believe in youth and the American dream, we created HOBY to identify, recognize, and develop leadership among our nation's youth."

Funding for the leadership program is provided by businesses, foundations, civic clubs, and individuals throughout the state. HOBY financial sponsors for this area include Lower Pearl River Valley Foundation and BancorpSouth Foundation.

Information about HOBY activities and sponsorship opportunities is available by contacting HOBY representatives at P.O. Box 720155, Jackson, MS 39272, by telephone at 601-845-3031, or by e-mail at hobyquestions@yahoo.com.

Hancock County Job Fair seeking business & industry exhibitors

THE SEA COAST ECHO

The Hancock County Chamber of Commerce and the Hancock County Port & Harbor Commission are seeking business and industrial companies with job openings to exhibit at the upcoming Business & Industry Job Fair on Wednesday, July 9 from 10am-3pm at the Hancock County Civic Center on Longfellow Road in Bay St. Louis, MS.

Tish Williams, Director of the Hancock Chamber who is managing the event for the area said, "This Job Fair is hosted by the people of Hancock County as a pledge of support for our citizens, in direct response to the employees of Alcan Cable." Recently, Alcan Cable made a difficult but necessary decision to cease operations in Bay St. Louis, MS. The decision was necessary due to prolonged poor market conditions and over capacity in the cable utility market.

"This situation creates a pool of highly skilled, self-directed workers who could be an asset to area companies," she said. Specifically, the workers at Alcan include electronic / electricians, maintenance technicians, operators, warehouse managers, shipping and receiving managers, human resources managers, IT workers and more.

Working with Alcan, community leaders are making every effort to ease the transition for these employees over the next several months. The Hancock County Business & Industry Job Fair is specifically designed to help match the needs of area companies with the skills of the Alcan employees and other workers in the area who may be seeking employment.

Alcan Plant Manager Rick Stokes said, "Over the past years, Alcan employees have achieved many accomplishments together through teamwork, flexibility and collaboration." "They are an exceptional workforce committed and adaptable to change," he said.

Plant achievements include: 100 percent self-directed work force; ISO 14001 Environmental Certification; ISO 9001:2000 Quality Certification; record productivity and production; operated shop floor automation through the use of highly technical technology; worked safely through a behavior based approach to safety; and, received numerous quality awards.

To confirm plans to exhibit, companies should contact Tish Williams at the Hancock County Chamber of Commerce at 228-467-9048 to obtain a registration form. The fee is exhibit is $100. To report employment positions for posting at the Alcan Career Center, please contact Jane Caruso at 228-466-8159.

This event is sponsored by: Hancock County Chamber of Commerce, Hancock County Port & Harbor Commission, Hancock County Board of Supervisors, City of Bay St. Louis, City of Waveland, Casino Magic Bay St. Louis, Sea Coast Echo, Balch & Bingham, Charles B. Benvenuti, CPA, PA, Hancock Bank, EATEL Sunshine Pages, Whitney National Bank, The Peoples Bank, Bay Business Consulting, Blue Cap Software, Cellular South, and Technical Solutions.

USM study aids Northrop expansion

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Work at The University of Southern Mississippi's Gulf South Economic Research Center (GSERC) is helping promote new economic development on the coast and in the state as a whole.

The center, based at the university's Gulf Park campus, completed a study in March that helped obtain millions of dollars for expansion of one of the Gulf Coast's chief economic powerhouses, Northrop Grumman Ship Systems.

In April, Gov. Ronnie Musgrove approved a bond issue of $48 million to continue a partnership with Northrop Grumman. The funds included in the bond issue are being used to modernize and expand the company's state-owned shipbuilding facilities in Pascagoula.

Before the Mississippi Legislature first approved the bond issue, however, Northrop Grumman enlisted the services of GSERC to evaluate the economic impact of the project.

Gulf South Economic Research Center Director Philip W. Jeffress said economic studies conducted by the center, such as the Northrop Grumman study, are helping to change the way the public views the value of academic research.

"Academics are sometimes accused of an 'ivory tower' existence, engaging in research that few people read about and only a handful of their colleagues appreciate," Jeffress said. "However, lack of a clear application does not dilute the importance of this kind of research, nor does it suggest that conclusions drawn from academic research will never really matter."

Jeffress said in contrast to scholarly research, the Gulf South Economic Research Center engages in practical research that often focuses on local questions or issues requiring timely results for impending decisions.

In the Northrop Grumman Study, for example, the Gulf South Economic Research Center sought to answer two primary questions vital to the project's future: What is the projected economic impact of the project on employment, income and output of state tax revenues in Mississippi; and second, will the additional tax revenues generated by the project be sufficient to cover principal and interest costs incurred by the state over the life of the bonds?

GSERC's study concluded that the construction phase of the Northrop Grumman Project will increase output by about $632 million and boost income by nearly $248 million.

The study also concluded that increased operations will add as many as 350 new engineering and technical specialist jobs for the project that will generate a statewide total of about 740 new jobs, $62 million per year in additional output and more than $28 million per year in added income.

In addition, the project will add another 1,650 new jobs in shipbuilding at Northrop Grumman Ship Systems. That will generate a total increase of nearly $329 million per year in added output, $152 million per year in income and a total increase of 3,100 new jobs statewide.

Thus, the total projected increase of 2,000 new jobs at Northrop Grumman Ship Systems will generate more than 1,840 new jobs in other businesses throughout Mississippi.

Over the course of the next 20 years, the Northrop Grumman expansion is projected to generate more than $294 million in additional tax revenues for Mississippi, creating a surplus of more than $32 million in state tax revenues after all principal and interest on bonds have been paid off.

"The economic impact study compiled by GSERC has played a major role in demonstrating the economic benefits of our expansion program partnership," said Dr. Philip A. Dur, president of Northrop Grumman Ship Systems.

Jeffress said the value of GSERC's research is apparent in the number of parties that will benefit from Northrop Grumman's expansion.

"It is certain that Northrop Grumman Ship Systems will benefit as the recipient of the bonds," Jeffress said.

"A more complete answer, however, includes the Mississippi Development Authority, legislative committees and the full legislature, Mississippi taxpayers and those who will gain directly or indirectly from the economic impact of Northrop Grumman's expansion. This study clearly illustrates the value of practical research in support of business and community development."

All American Basketball School sets dates

BY JOSEPH W. GEX, II
Staff Writer

Ladner's Gulf Coast School of Basketball has changed its name but the quality of instruction on the game of basketball has not.

The camp, now in its 15th year of operation, has simply changed its name to Gulf Coast All American Basketball School.

Another new addition to the camp will be one-day specialty clinics in June and its traditional camp in late July.

The one-day clinics are in response to some popular ideas that are rampant throughout the country in the game of basketball.

"The camp is always looking for unique opportunities and these are things that are popular in other parts of the country," said camp director Jay Ladner.

"We feel compelled to offer these specialty clinics to our campers in an effort to better educate them in the game of basketball. However, we will continue to teach the campers the fundamental principles of the camp which have been God, family and athletics, in that order."

The first specialty clinic that is offered will be the Father/Son Clinic on June 21. While it is being called a Father/Son Clinic, it does not have to be that literally, as some mothers and daughters have already signed up.

On June 23, a Shooting Clinic will be held to focus on the proper technique and art of shooting the basketball. A Guard Play Clinic will be offered on June 24 and a Post Man Clinic on June 25. The two latter clinics will focus on the intricacies of the respective positions on the court.

All specialty clinics will be conducted at St. Stanislaus High School from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. with lunch provided. The specialty clinics will be open to campers 9-18 and the cost is $40 each or all four clinics for $120.

The school will hold its traditional end of the summer camp July 21-24 on the campus of St. Stanislaus High College in Bay St. Louis. The Rock-a-chaws head coach Jay Ladner is the camp's director while expert instruction will be given by former Mississippi State University head coach Richard Williams.

Other camp staff include former Gulfport head coach Bryan Caldwell who won a state 5A title with the Admirals in 2002, current Gulfport High head coach Danny Grieves who won a state title with Morton High School in 1998, several top coaches from Louisiana, Alabama and Mississippi. Motivational speakers will be featured for the campers including basketball coaching legend J. Larry Ladner, a Mississippi Association of Coaches Hall of Fame member.

The cost for the camp is $65 per camper and that fee includes a camp shirt. The camp is open to boys ages 5 through 12th grade. Registration is slated to begin one hour prior to beginning the first day of camp. The camp will run daily 5:30 p.m. until 8:30 p.m.

Space for the specialty clinics is limited and pre-registration is recommended. For more information on any of the specialty clinics or the traditional camp, contact Jay Ladner at 228-467-9057, extension 224 or 228-452-2916. Coach Ladner can also be reached via e-mail at jayladner@ststan.com.

Two soccer clubs merge to form new organization on Gulf Coast

BY JOSEPH W. GEX, II
Staff Writer

A new soccer organization appeared on the Mississippi Gulf Coast as of June 1, 2003.

The Gulf Coast Soccer Academy/Gulf Coast United is an official merger between the South Mississippi Soccer Club and the Mississippi Coast Futbol Club of Jackson County.

The aim of this merger is to provide as many opportunities as possible to more players wishing to compete at the highest level.

In the younger age groups, teams will be community based programs while the older leagues will have combined tryouts and teams.

The new organization hopes to field multiple teams in all age groups thus providing for more opportunities for the maximum number of players possible.

In U11-U13, teams will be formed as in the past. Present players will be allowed to retain their present affiliations. The number of teams will be based on the number of qualified players and coaches in the community. In U14 and up, players from both areas will tryout together for one or more teams in each respective age group.

League officials said, "SMSC and MCFC feel this organization will offer the very best in soccer to those that participate whether that is the player who dreams to play college soccer or the player that just enjoys the competition."

The league will have a full-time director of coaching and two assistants to ensure the integrity of the training is complete from top to bottom.

The director of coaching is Oleg Chickhanov while the two assistants are Danny Owens and Paul Martin. Chickhanov began soccer in his native Russia for the Youth National Team prior to coming to America to play for William Carey College. There, he earned 1st Team All-American honors before playing professional soccer. He has coached on the collegiate level and the youth soccer level.

Owens, an native of Baton Rouge, is currently the head coach for the OLA Crescents - the only fourpetitive soccer for over 20 years and has coached at the youth level and high school level. He helped bring soccer to George and Greene counties.

Tryouts for the U14-U18 divisions will be held at the Gulfport Sportsplex on June 17-18. The girls will tryout at 5pm and boys at 7 p.m.

For the U11-U13 divisions, tryouts will be held June 23-24 and July 15-16 at the Gulfport Sportsplex for Harrison and Hancock counties. For Jackson, George and Greene counties, tryouts will be held at the Pascagoula Soccer Complex. Girls will tryout at 5 p.m. and boys at 7 p.m.

For more information please contact Oleg Chickhanov at 228-594-0858 or Danny Owens at 228-452-1012. All participants in the tryouts are required to bring their own cleats, shin guards, water and ball.

Marine Life and the weather mark third week of Summer Reading Program

THE SEA COAST ECHO

Learn about the importance of marine animals or learn about weather phenomenon at the third week of the Hancock County Library System's 2003 Summer Reading Program. Books Ahoy!! is the theme for this year's program, which is free for children and young adults, preschool age through eighth grade.

Marine Life Oceanarium will bring marine animals with them to the Pearlington Public Library on Tuesday, June 17, at 10:30 a.m., and at the Kiln Public Library on Thursday, June 19, at 10:30 a.m. Not only will the children be able to see the animals, but they will also learn the importance of marine animals to our environment.

Weather is an important part of our lives. Especially during the hurricane season. Dr. Bill Burnett, meteorologist with the Naval Meteorology and Oceanography Command at Stennis Space Center, will discuss weather phenomenon and how the Navy uses the information.

Burnett is the Plans and Programs Division Head at the Naval Meteorology and Oceanography Command. He is responsible for planning and overseeing the Navy's weather, ocean and geospatial programs. He is also responsible for the management and oversight of all climate and weather factors within the Department of Defense.

Programs, held weekly through the month of June, are set for Tuesdays at 10:30 a.m. at the Pearlington Public Library; Wednesdays at 10:30 a.m. at the Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library; Thursdays at 10:30 a.m. at the Win Public Library.

Each registrant receives a reading record, a book bag and a pencil with which to record books read, and those who complete the program will receive a certificate.

Awards and certificates will be presented the week of June 24. A library card is required to check out all books, which may be checked out at any of the library system's branches.

To register, children should go to the library branch nearest them, and then visit a branch at least four (4) times during the program, and check out at least six (6) books between May 26 and June 21. To validate each visit, each reading record must be stamped. Merit stamps will be awarded for every five (5) books reach beyond the basic goal of six books.

For more information about individual branch programs, contact Adrienne Bradley, Bay St. Louis-Hancock County Library, 467-5282; Sandra Ladner, Kiln Public Library, 255-1724; or Deborah Hill, Pearlington Public Library, 533-0755.

Expert says violent Vietnamese gangs active on MS Gulf Coast

BY CHRISTOPHER MAPP

Gang expert Jay Banta of the Biloxi Police Department wants people in Mississippi to know two things about Vietnamese gangs: They're here. And they're not who you think. "They blend in," Banta told an audience made up mostly of educators and law enforcement officials Wednesday at The University of Southern Mississippi. "You can't tell them by their clothes. If everyone in class is wearing Tommy Hilfiger clothes, then that's what they're wearing too."

As part of a daylong seminar on "Gangs, Cults and Violence in the School Setting," Banta detailed the brutal nature of most Vietnamese criminal groups, drawing upon his experiences over the last 15 years investigating gang activities on the Gulf Coast and in Arkansas.

Banta said, "Most people don't realize they're here. When they hear 'Asian gangs,' they think of the Chinese Triad or the Japanese Yakuza."

However, Vietnamese gangs, concentrated in Mississippi primarily along the Gulf Coast -- and Biloxi and Harrison County in particular -- are every bit as dangerous and sadistic as their counterparts, he said, and often more so.

Operating under names like "The Biloxi Boys," "Brothers of the Four Beaches," and "Oriental Baby Gangsters" -- a group of elementary-aged Vietnamese children groomed for membership into adult gangs -- these criminal groups often do what Banta described as "the dirty work" of other Asian gangs.

"Those two groups (Triad and Yakuza) hire the Vietnamese gangs to do stuff like home invasions and murder-for-hire," Banta said. "That's how they make their money, doing dirty work for other gangs so it can't be traced back to them."

Banta said it is mainly violence for which Vietnamese gangs are becoming infamous. "And I do mean violence in the extreme," he stressed.

Vietnamese gangs also make substantial amounts of money illegally by selling drugs and running car-theft rings. "The fender of a car stolen here in Mississippi might eventually wind up in California or even Hong Kong," Banta said.

Often characterized as "bright students," many Vietnamese gang members in junior high or high school go undetected because they make excellent grades, wear nice clothes and even earn scholarships to college, Banta said. If they are implicated in a crime, the first thing Banta said he usually hears from their teachers is "I would have never suspected that student. He was so quiet."

For that reason, Banta

A group of educators attending Wednesday's seminar on "Gangs, Cults and School Violence" at The University of Southern Mississippi squirm in shock and dismay as Jay Banta of the Biloxi Police Department explains a torture tactic employed by Vietnamese gang members on the Gulf Coast.

said it is imperative for educators to help law enforcement officials look for signs that a student might be involved in a gang. Graffiti scrawled on textbooks, suspicious tattoos and even intentionally inflicted cigarette burns are all indicators of gang membership, he said.

"A lot of times we get calls from schools where a teacher might suspect a child is being abused at home, being burned, and we get there and see that the burns are shaped in three dots. That's a sign they're in a gang," Banta said.

One attendee at the seminar, Houston Cunningham of Moss Point, came looking for ways to minister to the needs of former gang members and to prevent others from becoming new members.

A pastor at Green Pastures Christian Ministries on the coast, Cunningham has attended about four of the "gangs-cults" seminars sponsored by Southern Miss.

He said the informative sessions have helped him in his work in communities and schools.

"As a pastor, I have to deal with them once they get out of a gang and turn their lives over to Christ, and I've had to learn how to protect them and their families," Cunningham said. "I also have to be able to directly help parents with kids who might be in trouble with gangs."

Banta said law enforcement officials must be wary of discounting the threat posed by female Vietnamese gangs, which he said can often be more violent than their male counterparts. Because of the traditional Vietnamese family philosophy that deemphasizes the societal importance of females, Banta said, they often have a pent up aggression that manifests itself in dangerous ways.

"If you're a police officer, and you're not going to check this little Vietnamese girl for a gun, you'd better think again," he said. "Male gangs call their females 'mules,' which means they carry a lot of the illegal contraband that cops look for on the streets."

Implying educators and law enforcement to "open their eyes," Banta reiterated that Vietnamese gangs are here, and they are extremely dangerous.

"These are not nice people," he said. "They are very intelligent, do very well in school and usually get straight A's. But they're not nice people. If they were they wouldn't have someone like me watching."

Coordinated by the USM Department of Continuing Education and Distance Learning, the program agenda for "Gangs, Cults and Violence in the School Setting" included other sessions on gang and cult activity in Mississippi; weapons used by gangs; Satanism; witchcraft and voodoo; and techniques and strategies for prevention, intervention and suppression.

The seminar is headed annually by Dr. Johnny Purvis, professor of educational leadership and research at USM and director of the Mississippi Safe Schools Center.

Blue Glory
is hot,
new vine

BY NORMAN WINTER
MSU Horticulturist
Central Mississippi
Research & Extension
Center

The Blue Glory offers the perfect complement for the Sunny Orange Wonder black-eyed Susan vine.

A new vine in town this spring could change our landscape habits for a long time. The vine is called Blue Glory, known botanically as Thunbergia battiscombei.

We know thunbergias from the clock vine or black-eyed Susan vine Thunbergia alata and, of course, the Brazilian sky flower Thunbergia grandiflora.

The Thunbergia battiscombei is native to tropical Africa but is finding favor in the lower South as well. You may have already seen this vine and wondered what it was. The trumpet-shaped flowers have an intense, deeply saturated blue color with a bright yellow throat.

Blue Glory may be the perfect companion for the black-eyed Susan vine from the standpoint of color and bloom period. Just as the black-eyed Susan vine is finishing its peak performance in June, Blue Glory will begin to bloom and continue until frost. They may even be in bloom simultaneously for a short time.

Another outstanding attribute of Blue Glory is that growers and gardeners across the country are reporting it is perennial in zone 8. After dying when temperatures hit the 20s, it returns in the spring.

Whereas we may have to pamper the sky flower to return, the Blue Glory does so with ease. Who knows what it might do in North Mississippi, given good drainage and an added layer of mulch.

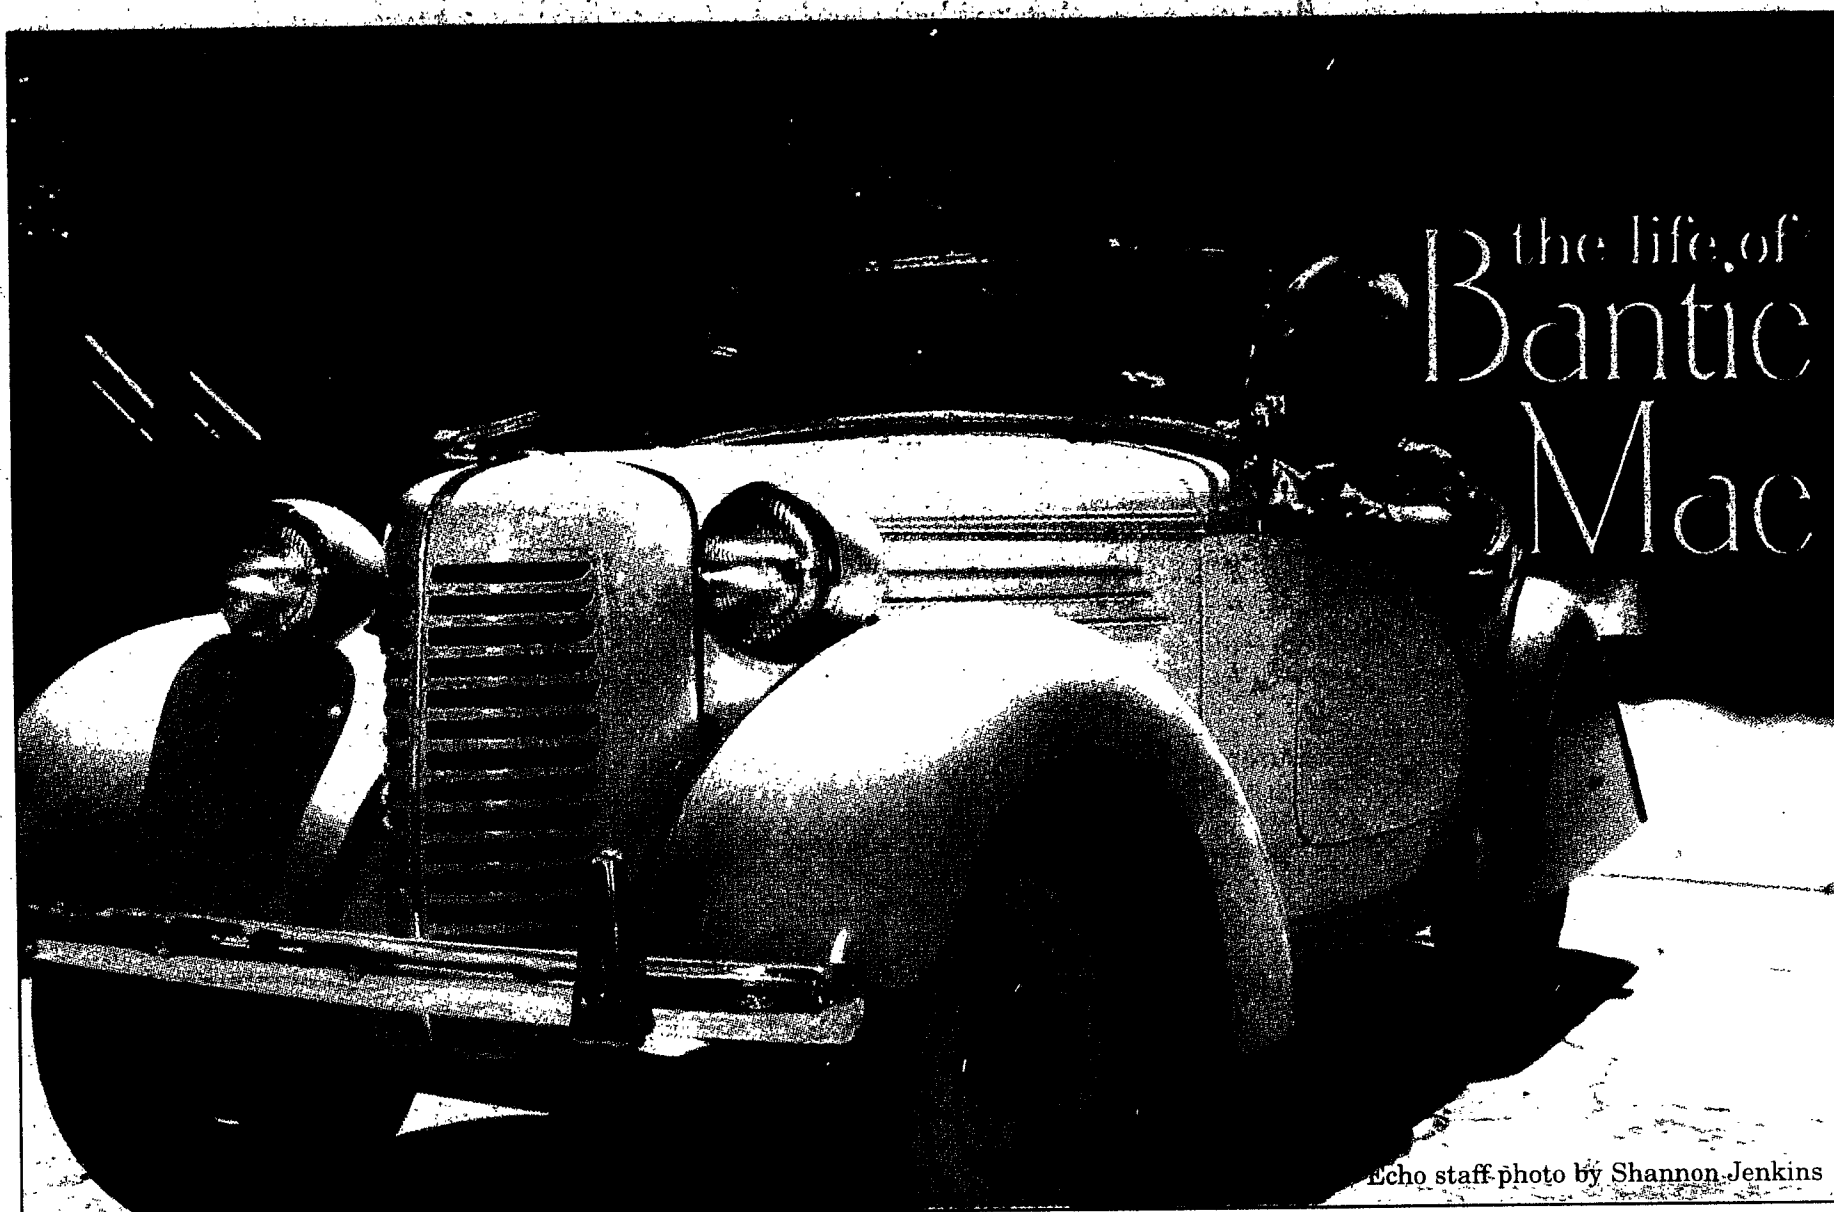

Some of our Mississippi growers produced Blue Glory for retail garden centers, as well as for the three official Mississippi Garden and Patio Shows held this spring in Gulfport, Jackson and Southaven.

Blue Glory produces light green, herbaceous stems that hold large 5-by-7-inch, heart shaped leaves. The leaves are bright green and smooth-edged. Rather than growing alternately along the stem, these leaves grow directly across from one another.

From the axils, where the leaf attaches to the stem, arise clusters of interesting, 1-inch-long, hairy, white flowerbuds. From these emerge the intense blue-purple, trumpet-shaped flowers that create such a stunning sight against the handsome foliage.

Blue Glory is not fussy about soil as long as it is well drained. Feed with frequent, light applications of Although she never took her first breath, Bantie Mae has lived an interesting life.

Her story begins 65 years ago, when she first met her family in Mobile, Ala. Harry Gray had purchased the 1938 American Austin Roadster for $510. She was a gift for Gray's wife, Mollie Mae, whom the car was named after.

During World War II, Mrs. Gray had Bantie Mae's original colors of cream and beige painted black and had black tape placed over the top half of the headlights.

This would keep German planes from seeing Bantie Mae at night. "She kept (Bantie Mae) in the back of the garage," said Charles Gray, Mollie Mae's son. "(She) was mother's escape car in case the Germans invaded."

The car stayed in storage until 1948 when Charles began driving her to high school. Bantie Mae saw Charles through the rest of his school years and eventually through college.

In 1951, he drove the Austin Bantam to the University of Southern Mississippi in Hattiesburg. Around 1952 or '53, Bantie Mae disappeared.

Charles found her three weeks later on the third floor of Forest Hall on campus. The football team had carried the 1,200 pound car, which measured 4 feet by 8 feet long, up there. They even helped carry her back down.

With her college days behind her, Bantie Mae soon found herself in storage in Waynesboro.

Mrs. Gray's hometown. She stayed there from 1956 to 1958 while Charles served in the Army.

In 1959, Bantie Mae accompanied Charles to a New Years Eve party. Charles fell in love with the Big Easy and decided to make his home there. He even shared the rooms of his house with Bantie Mae.

The 40th Annual American Austin Bantam Club National Meet will be held June 16-19 in Bay St. Louis.

This event will offer a tour of cars at the Depot and a car parts flea market for members of the club.

"I didn't have a garage and I knew (Bantie Mae) would be stolen if I left her on the street," he said. "So, I drove her into the den and parked her where the couch would be."

They lived happily for awhile until trouble arrived. Bantie Mae was having problems with her timing gear. Charles pulled her engine out to work on it, and eventually, he took the car apart. He stored her in the back bedroom, where she stayed for a year.

Charles then moved Bantie Mae to the attic where she was slowly reassembled. She stayed there another 16 years.

Rumors of Charles and his automotive mistress, of course, spread through New Orleans.

One day while on a drive, Charles spotted Bantie

Mae's twin behind a house. He banged on the door of the house until an old woman answered. He asked to speak to the owner of the car. She asked if something was wrong; it was her husband's, and he wasn't home.

Charles told her he owned a car just like it, and she slammed the door in his face. He stood there speechless until the woman

Walking with Holly

Let's take another walk on the beach. It's evening and cool and Jenny and Holly will come with us. Holly will hang back and trail after us in the beach grass, but he will be there. Look back. See, there he is.

Things have changed since the beginning of the summer. The walkway along the beach is here now and they have bridges over the culverts. It's all very nice, but let's leave the walkway and walk in the sand midway between the water and the road. Jennie is down by the water, sniffing the smells that dogs smell and running along in loping explorations that range ahead of us.

They have also removed one of the two rows of grass that ran parallel to the road and haven't replaced it yet. I hope they do; Holly is nervous with only one row of tall grass to hide in. This is silly of him, of course, as his black fur makes him stand out amid the light tan grass. But I keep forgetting that he's a cat, and rational thought, I have found out in the two years I've had him, is something he doesn't necessarily do. I will confess that despite this obvious separation of thought processes, I have become more and more attached to Holly. In a way that is difficult for me to rationalize and I worry to myself that somehow the cat isn't the one that is changing.

Let's stop for a minute and look around. In front of us is sand, the old live oaks are on right on the other side of the road, and the waters of the Sound are on our left, spread out to meet the late afternoon horizon. We are at that perfect moment of the day. The sun has already set behind some clouds ahead of us and to our right. From its cover behind the clouds it will drop behind the horizon shortly. Already the light from one moment to the next is changing. It is so subtle a change that it appears gradual, but it's not. It will be dusk, then dark very soon as evening sets in. Till then the sand, the sky, the water will vie with one another in the different colors they can assume.

Look there close in over the water. A pure white egret is going by, its flapping wings look like some fluttering handkerchief being waved at us by an unseen hand. I like to watch egrets do this. It's a very pretty trick. When I see one do it, I feel as if I am witnessing some magician's sleight-of-hand. There are some gulls that do a similar flutter. These gulls have black wings and when they go by with their wings doing a flutter, the black tips, momentarily cloak the bird's body. The result gives a strobe-like illusion to their flight, as if the birds disappear then reappearing in alternate microseconds.

Blink they're there; blink they're not. Magic.

Holley, sensing it's time to return has come out over the sand and joined us. He starts his senseless intertwining weaving between my legs. I've learned to ignore him when he does this. But I stand still; I know it's illogical, but I don't want to trip and besides, it feels good.

I call Jennie who stops and looks back at me from where she is further down the beach. Satisfied that I haven't turned back as yet, she ignores my second call

McNeil re-elected to board of directors

Police Chief Frank McNeil was re-elected as the State of Mississippi's representative on the Board of Directors for the Regional Organized Crime Information Center (ROCIC). ROCIC is one of six (6) Federal RISS projects organized to provide services designed to support local, state, federal, and tribal law enforcement efforts in combating multijurisdictional criminal activities. This project focuses on the support of investigations concerning narcotics trafficking, terrorist activity, organized crime, criminal gangs, and violent crime.

The first of the six (6) RISS (Regional Information Sharing System) centers

Chief McNeil was originally elected to the Board of Directors in June of 2000 and will be entering into his second term. McNeil will also serve as Board Secretary for this year. Next year Chief McNeil will move up to First Vice President and the following year to the Board Chairman position. Singer-songwriter-guitarist Springfield, born in Sydney, Australia enjoyed hits in his native country before moving to America in the early '70s and hitting the American charts in 1972 with "Speak To The Sky". Springfield then started an acting career, although he continued to write and record, and first became a household name playing Dr. Noah Drake on the TV soap opera "General Hospital" in 1981.

He has also appeared in such movies as "Dead Reckoning," "With Harmful Intent," and "Hard To Hold".

Now Springfield is back touring for the first time in several years. Don't miss him at Casino Magic Bay St. Louis for one performance only Friday, June 20. Must be 21.

American movies and whose love of the country made her the ambassadress of samba and Brazilian customs. Experience Brazilian martial arts with unique acrobatic numbers and enjoy red-hot dance numbers that Brazilians couples made famous.

"Hot Rio Nights" culminates with the Carnival celebration and the parade of the samba schools of Rio de Janeiro. The show takes guests to the heart of Rio, as the talented, energetic ensemble of singers, dancers, and musicians recreate the fun, festive atmosphere that can only be found in the exotic streets of Brazil during Carnival.

Tickets to "Hot Rio Nights" are $19.95 and $24.95 plus tax. Call 228-386-7777 or 888-566-7469 for details.

cracked the door open again, with the chain locks in place.

"That's not possible," she told Charles. "There's only one more like it, and it belongs to a kooky old man in the French Quarter who has it in his attic."

In 1984, Charles disassembled Bantie Mae once again to move her from the attic to his new home in Bay St. Louis. About a year later, he had the car sanded down to her original colors of cream and beige. He drove her less and less, but parked Bantie Mae on the front lawn during rainless Christmas seasons. Charles would fill her with gifts so she would greet his holiday party guests.

Bantie Mae now lives with Charles at his new home in Pass Christian. Although she's had a bit of work done — an engine here and a few parts there — Bantie Mae remains in good shape.

She's still as curvy as the day Harry Gray bought her.

for her to come and continues to do her running-sniffing along the sand's edge.

She has learned to listen to the tone of my calls and has fine-tuned her response to just before that exact moment I'm about to become enraged at her not coming. Now, with exquisite timing, she comes at my fourth call, racing back accompanied by a cloak of such obvious happiness that any anger on my part melts and the three of us start a slow walk back in the long shadowed light toward the house.

I worry. All of us drift in a sea of time of which this now that we are in is such a small part. And yet it is all we have.

This evening should go on forever, but it won't. And these two that are accompanying me this evening won't as well. Things change, sometimes too quickly. The cool of the evening is the only time the three of us walk now.

Early this summer, when we were walking in the early morning light, it was hot walking in the sand. The early morning sun baking the sand, it didn't bother me and Jennie running in the shallows didn't seem bothered either.

It was different with Holly, however. He's so low to the sand, he was getting the full brunt of the reradiated heat. Being black just exacerbated the problem.

As we walked, I realized that Holly was following us by running from one trash barrel to the next. He would sit in the barrel's shade for a moment and then race after us to stop at the next barrel about 50 yards further along. He tried to keep up, but was always one trash barrel behind us. I was intrigued by this.

Just how much cooler the barrels, shade could be? I stuck my bare foot in the shade of the nearest barrel. It was cool! Not so much the air, but the sand itself. It had not yet been heated by the morning sun's intense radiation.

Holly had figured this out; hence, his race from barrel to barrel. Still there was the long 50 yards of hot sand in between.

I should have realized the implication of this, but continued on to the small bridge over culvert that empties Lister's Pond.

Here Holly at last caught up and stood with us on the broad rough boards of the bridge. He stayed extremely close to me. Unusually close, and I looked down when I heard a faint noise.

To my horror, Holly was standing by my leg with his mouth opened unnaturally wide emitting a hard gasping cough.

He was having heatstroke! I picked him up still gasping and ran back to the house, Jennie running close with us as if knowing something was wrong.

We reached the house with its air conditioning and after several hours, Holly revived and started acting normal. But we didn't go out in the morning heat again.

But that was then and they are here now and so we are together when we reach the house in the dimming light. There is still much time spread far ahead of us, we can come back tomorrow.

But the coming back to today for me is years away.

fertilizer with each flush of the brilliant blossoms. It will do best in full sun but will also thrive in morning sun and afternoon shade. Some suggest that this may be the ideal site in Mississippi. It is easy to propagate by cuttings or divisions.

In addition to growing with the black-eyed Susan vine, also try it with mandevillas or allamandas for an exotic, tropical appeal. Trained to a trellis, it normally reaches 6 to 7 feet. It can, however, be left on the ground to form a mound.

Oddly enough, Thunbergia battiscombei is one of those plants that has not found its way to the normal reference books. In fact, not a single book I own has it listed. Nevertheless, all we can say is it is a great time to be a gardener and a plant explorer.

I have seen Blue Glory at several garden centers and expect it to hang around most of the summer. Look for it in areas with mandevillas, allamandas and passionflowers.

Howard and Kay Mc Kissack, owners of Bay Sweets located at 113 S. Beach Blvd. in Old Towne Bay St. Louis are both big fans of soft serve yogurt and ice cream. They recognized the need for a "sweet shop" in the Bay area and wanted to create a safe, clean environment where friends and families can gather. Bay Sweets is just that place.

Bay Sweets has a fun and festive environment. They serve malts, milkshakes, sundaes, dipped cones, gourmet cookies, brownies, frozen drinks, popcorn and they even have an Icee machine. They make cookie cakes and can create dessert platters brimming with delicious treats perfect for your next party. The McKissacks plan to expand their menu this summer to include mini pizzas, nachos, hot dogs and chili. Kay is also looking forward to organizing a cake decorating class for children and young adults.

Bay Sweets is a great place to have your child's next birthday party. The children decorate their own mini cake and create their own ice cream sundaes, games are played and craft projects are offered. The kids love it and the possibilities are endless.

A few words from Howard and Kay Mc Kissack..."We've been warmly welcomed by our customers and by the merchants in the Bay area and we are looking forward to meeting all of you. We hope to help create lots of fun memories for you and your families and friends. Please stop in soon for a visit."

IN THE KING'S NAME

THE ANCIENT KINGS, AS SUCH, WERE VARIED. NEBUCHADNEZZAR OF BABYLON AND ARTAXERXES THE PERSIAN WERE EACH "KINGS OVER KINGS" (EZRA 7:12; DAN 2:37; II KINGS 24:17). HOWEVER, THE USUAL MONARCH OFTEN RULED ONLY ONE CITY. SOME OF THEM BEING LESS THAN THE SIZE OF A SMALL VILLAGE BY TODAY'S STANDARDS. A MAN BECAME KING OF A NATION OR CITY EITHER BY APPOINTMENT, BY ONE WHO WAS HIGHER IN AUTHORITY (I SAM. 9:16, 16:1, 19; II KINGS 23:30), OR BY USURPING A THRONE, OR BY INHERITANCE. THE RESTRAINTS UPON A KING WERE THE FEAR OF GOD AND MAN. THE POPULAR WILL COULD NOT BE IGNORED! HOWEVER, THE KINGS DID LEAD A SHELTERED AND LUXURIOUS LIFE. IN VIEW OF THE ROYAL DUTIES REQUIRED OF THEM, BOTH PHYSICAL AND MENTAL, THE MORAL REQUIREMENTS DEMANDED A HIGH MEASURE OF INTEGRITY. TO RULE WELL, MANY OF THE ATTRIBUTES AND ACCOMPLISHMENTS ATTRIBUTED TO NUMEROUS RULERS WERE REALLY CARRIED OUT BY A DESIGNATED SURROGATE, WHO DID THE ACTUAL STORMING OF THE BATTLEMENT WALL OR CHARGED FEARLESSLY INTO AN ENEMY'S CAMP. "CALL IN THE KING'S NAME!" WHILE A KING REMAINED IN THE LUXURIOUS TRAPPINGS OF HIS PALACE... HIS APPOINTED SURROGATE, MANY MILES AWAY, MIGHT BE WEARILY APPROACHING A BATTLE WHERE HE IS DESTINED TO BRING... "HONOR TO THE KING'S NAME!"

The spirit breathes where it will

"The board of Tulane today passed a resolution by a vote of 27 for, 0 against and 1 abstaining, affirming its commitment to the continuation of 1-A intercollegiate athletics at Tulane University. At our meeting today the board of administrators endorsed a multi-year athletic department plan.

"Tulane has in place a division 1-A program that is exemplary among intercollegiate athletic programs throughout the country. Our competency in the classroom together with our competitiveness on the playing field makes us a model to which the board feels other 1-A programs should aspire."

I had no clue how tense the atmosphere had become, and how much I myself waited with bated breath until that announcement by board chairman John Koerner. A fine misting over of my eyes proved I had got caught up in the passionate drive of the city to keep major athletics at Tulane University.

Once more, I had experienced the magnetic draw of the Secular City, and, once more, its inseparable ties with the City of God were made manifest. An immediate parallel popped into mind about the two Cities which keep all of us humans constantly living in the one and aspiring to the other.

Without a lot of passion and dedication, neither City is worth much to anyone.

Until Scott Cowen, the university President, began to make threatening noises as if 1-A athletics were about to be demoted to class 3-A, there was virtually no passion nor enthusiasm about sports or, for that matter, about anything else on campus. Academia and sports had been humdrum for years.

Ah, but threaten the university with an enormous loss of national prestige from interstate travel and TV exposure, not to mention big TV purses, and a buzz is in progress. Tell the city it is about to lose its number 1 employer, a good part of its tax base, and a totally free vehicle of multi-million-dollar national advertisements, and the entire city has awakened from its torpor.

In an eerie parallel, the City of God operations of the Catholic Church had been drifting for years through the waters of complacency, self-satisfaction, lack of grassroots connection and interaction with the hierarchy, and a marked absence of passion and enthusiasm for church ministries.

Unfortunately, it took the ungodly shaking and quaking of flagrant sexual abuse scandals to fire up the laity and in turn light a fire under church leaders who had grown secure, complacent and, above all, deaf to the cries of their lowly constituents. Not unlike the case of the devotees of athletics in Tulane University, we are crisis-oriented rather than proactive visionaries.

Heartbroken at the outrage of clerics abusing their children, and insulted at seeing their hard-earned dollars taken from the Sunday collection and ultimately from up to half the diocesan endowment, to defray legal expenses in sundry clerical sexual abuse cases, passionate laypersons have rocked the boat and shaken the trees, resolved to hold their leaders' feet to the fire.

In both Cities, a lack of challenge, hardship and crisis lulled the denizens into a sense and state of complacency which discouraged everyone from undergoing rigorous self-examination on all fronts. To his credit, although he was labeled the villain in the whole process, Tulane University Scott Cowen led the school through such a painful ordeal.

The end product of the anguished self-examination was a fired-up, aroused, passionate university population moving forward irrepressibly in season ticket sales and endowment pledges, to the point where the university Board of Trustees cast the favorable vote.

One would have hoped that the City of God could and would do a lot better than the Secular City in its pursuit of life and all its goals. Well, we are obviously dealing with the same people who inhabit both cities and bring their same personalities, characters and credentials to bear in each venue.

It appears that the point of greatest commonality between the two Cities is our human propensity to be satisfied too quickly when things seem to be going well. Self-examination and self-criticism are very unpleasant, and, generally, we dislike people who suggest that we do them periodically.

One thing struck me as an overwhelming constant in all things which happen in the Secular City; namely, the movement of the Spirit. It was no accident that the Tulane athletics decision made such an impact on me, and immediately led me to think of the parallel with the Church's problems.

"The Spirit breathes where he wills," the New Testament assures us, moving about the Secular City and secular events in such a way that we are immediately drawn from the mundane to the City of God. Involvement in the Secular City does not detract from but rather enhances the City of God.

The "Word" for the Week Jonah's Prayer of Praise

Dennis J. Prutow • Box 303, Sterling, KS 67579

Our deepest fears involve the unknown. What will become of me if I lose my job? What will I do if my husband leaves me? How could I ever cope with cancer? These and other questions like them involve the unknown. They frighten us. Why?

Because we cannot control the unknown. That does frighten us. But we need to realize, that although we may not be in control, God is. In fact, God is in control of all things. This is the lesson of Jonah and the great fish.

When Jonah was cast into the sea by the sailors, Jonah did not blame those sailors. Listen to what he said, "Thou hadst cast me into the deep, into the heart of the seas" (Jonah 2:3).

Jonah spoke these words to God. Jonah realized God put him in this terrible position. This was an important step in Jonah overcoming his fear. Jonah did not know what was going to happen to him.

But he knew he was in the hands of God. This is the best possible place to be. So, in his fear, Jonah turned to God in prayer.

"While I was fainting away, I remembered the Lord; and my prayer came to Thee, into Thy Holy Temple" (Jonah 2:7).

Yes, Jonah knew God as the Master of the universe. Jonah knew God controls the winds and the sea. There is no sense praying to a god who does not have such control. It is this same God who takes the fear out of the unknown. How so?

"God causes all things to work together for good to those who love God" (Romans 8:28). So you can overcome fear by realizing the absolute sovereignty of God, trusting Him to work out all things for good, and by going to Him in prayer.

St. Ann's - St. John's News

Fr. John Kelly, Pastor (228-467-4746)

Mass schedule as follows:
St. Ann Catholic Church, Lower Bay Road

Saturday Vigil Mass 5p.m.
Sunday Masses: St. John Catholic Church, Lakeshore Road, Mass at 8a.m. - St. Ann's-10:30a.m.

Weekday Masses (St. Ann's)
Monday, Tuesday, Thursday, Friday - 8:30a.m. - Wed. 6:30p.m.

Visitors are always welcome.
Ground Breaking Ceremonies for the extension of our Parish Hall will be on Sunday, June 22. Bishop Thomas J. Rodi will be the celebrant at the 10:30 mass and will participate in the ceremonies and attend the luncheon. Everyone is invited.

Sincere thanks and appreciation to Phillip Garcia and Jerry Boos for their hard work in the construction for the Grotto honoring the Blessed Mother. And to Lois Saucier for tending to Mary.

St. Ann/St. John Parish has seven young people making the trip to our Diocesan mission in Saltillo, Mexico. We have a list of items we need to collect. Please place them in the basket in the back of the church. (Off brands and Store brands are fine).

Small shaving cream, bars of soap, fingernail polish, children's vitamins, tooth paste, baseball caps, aspirin, pepto, tylenol, tooth brushes, individually wrapped hard candy.

Money donations are welcomed and greatly appreciated. Makes checks out to the "Saltillo Mission Fund". It costs $500 to build a house for a needy family in Saltillo. Any amount will be cherished and appreciated.
Happy Father's Day!

Ever Carradine

Checking in with Ever Carradine

By John Crook
© Zap2it

Ever Carradine is feeling "lucky" these days.

Long mired in limiting bimbo roles, Carradine is getting some of the best reviews of her career as Theresa McWatt, a recovering gambler and sometimes girlfriend of the title character (John Corbett) in the FX comedy-drama "Lucky."

"Yes, I played the dummy in a lot of my early jobs," Carradine laughs, "and that worried me for about five seconds when I was first starting out. But then I realized, throughout the history of television, the funny characters in sitcom were often the 'stupid' people, or the ones who don't quite 'get' things the way other people do.

"I'm a college graduate. I read books all the time. Anyone who knows me knows I'm not an idiot."

Although she grew up as part of the famous Carradine acting clan, she kept to herself any early dreams of becoming a thespian.

"I knew my dad would try to discourage me, and you know, you just don't want to hear that," she explains.

While studying anthropology and sociology at a college in Oregon, however, Carradine embraced her destiny after appearing in a school play.

She credits her work as the fiery girlfriend of Sela Ward's ex-husband on "Once and Again" as marking a turning point in her career and revealing a formidable new range as an actress - a range that encompasses both the humor and the pathos of her "Lucky" role.

"I'm so proud of the work we're doing (on 'Lucky')." she says. "... And yes, I think it's a privilege to be able to do the same thing now that the rest of my family does."

Full name: Ever Dawn Carradine.
Born: Aug. 6, 1974, in Los Angeles.

Family ties: A member of the Carradine acting dynasty, she is the granddaughter of cult horror actor John Carradine and the daughter of "Revenge of the Nerds" star Robert Carradine; David and Keith Carradine are her uncles; actress Martha Plimpton is her cousin.

Previous TV credits: regular or recurring roles on "Conrad Bloom," "Party of Five," "Veronica's Closet," "Once and Again."

Film credits: "Lost & Found," "Ropewalk," "Jay and Silent Bob Strike Back," "Bubble Boy."

Up next: "Dead & Breakfast," a horror movie she made with a group of her acting pals.

Featured Romance gets reality check on new Fox summer series

By John Crook

What would you do if your ex-girlfriend suddenly showed up at your office on the eve of your wedding to another woman and revealed a billboard saying, "Marry me instead?"

How would your boyfriend react if a gorgeous model hit on him in the presumed privacy of an otherwise deserted elevator?

Those are among the questions couples face in "Anything for Love," a Fox summer series that begins a limited run on Monday, June 16, with eight half-hour episodes airing over four weeks in a one-hour block each week.

"This is a show that's based on 'All You Need Is Love,' which has been a hit throughout the world for quite some time," says Mark Walberg, who hosts the show with newcomer Claudia DiFolco. "It's a show people will enjoy because it plays all kinds of notes on a big, grand scale."

The tone of each episode shifts from segment to segment, ranging from tense revelations to touching or funny declarations of love.

"We have all different kinds of stories, some of them long ones where we go out in the field and shoot the story, whether it be an upbeat one about a proposal or an edgier one in which one person discovers that the other one in the relationship hasn't been honest," Walberg explains.

"Then there are the ones we do in the studio, like the guy who came in with the stunningly beautiful woman who was his best (platonic) friend, but he hoped to take that relationship to a more personal level. That was one of my favorite stories that we have done, because he was just so genuine and was speaking from the heart, and her reaction, which I won't reveal, was just priceless."

'Monk' basks in the sunshine of a new season

By Kate O'Hare
© Zap2it

A van full of cast and crew winds through the serpentine streets of Brentwood, a tony suburb of Los Angeles, on its way to a hilltop location at a Spanish-style women's college.

Production is under way on the second-season premiere of USA Network's comedy-mystery series "Monk," which airs Friday, June 20. If fans didn't know that the show has shifted locations, "Mr. Monk Goes Back to School" leaves little doubt.

After spending a season in Toronto - which doubled for San Francisco - "Monk" has set up shop in Hollywood, as demonstrated by the blue skies, palm trees and sweeping vistas of the rolling Santa Monica Mountains in the season opener.

"This is one of the most beautiful spots in the whole city," says star Tony Shalhoub, tucked into the van's back seat next to co-star Bitty Schram. "You can see forever. This is only our first episode, so we've been on the stage two days out of eight. That's about normal. I like getting out so you can get a lot of depth. Up here, you can get amazing shots that overlook the city, the hills and valleys. Beautiful."

"Monk" still is set in San Francisco, and the premise has not changed, with Shalhoub playing title character Adrian Monk. A former SFPD detective, he left the force on medical leave after the murder of his wife, Trudy, exacerbated his obsessive-compulsive disorder symptoms.

"We don't want him to get too much better too soon, that's for sure," Shalhoub says. "He is always struggling to work through his problems, and hopefully we'll never fix them."

"The relationship with his wife had a lot to do with (him becoming a policeman), because she was instrumental in centering him and keeping him sane. It wasn't until she was killed that the worst of his symptoms resurfaced and rendered him dysfunctional."

Still at Monk's side is his nurse and assistant, single mother Sharona Fleming (Schram). And as in Season 1, Monk continues to use his deductive skills to solve complex crimes as a private consultant to the police department, working with his ex-boss, Capt. Leland Stottlemeyer (Ted Levine), and young Lt. Randall Disher (Jason Gray-Stanford).

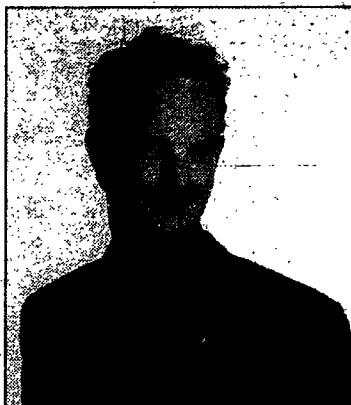

"There is a certain tone to the show that we don't want to change too much," Shalhoub says. "We like the way that it alternates between the drama and the comedy, without being too accountable to either. We wanted to further the relationships among the four main characters, get more into their personal lives, their back stories. I would like to see much more developing with Monk's shrink, because that's a good way to delve into the reasons why he might be the way he is."

Asked if there might be more romance, Shalhoub says, "For me or Schram? That wouldn't be bad, certainly for her."

Reminded that Lt. Disher doesn't appear to be married, Shalhoub says, "There's been some talk about that. They're always sort of hostile toward each other, inevitably they have to get together. Then they have to find out he's gay."

"Disher goes cruising," Schram interjects.

"Don't we find out that Disher is gay?" Shalhoub jokes. "We haven't sold that. You should be involved with him. You're totally committed and want this long-term relationship, then he has to come to you and tell you he's gay."

Jason Gray-Stanford reprises his role as ambitious San Francisco police Lt. Randall Disher in the second season of USA Network's mystery series "Monk," premiering Friday.

"That's another episode," Schram says.

Speaking earlier in his trailer, Gray-Stanford has a different view. "Disher's the most normal one, who can't understand how he's stuck with these three people all the time, having to work for one and then dealing with the other ones."

There is a price to pay for playing someone as troubled as Monk, whose compulsions include an excessive fear of germs. "The thing that happens to me since I've been doing this," Shalhoub says, "I just have a thought when I shake somebody's hand. I don't do anything. I don't wipe it off. I don't go wash. I have the thought, and the thought is never pleasant. It comes, and then it goes away after a minute, but it's just there."

Fan fave Chandler back on TV next fall

By Taylor Michaels
© Zap2it

Q I am a huge fan of Kyle Chandler ("Early Edition"). What is he doing next? - J.B., Wichita, Kan.

A The very popular Chandler returns to prime time next fall in NBC's highly anticipated series "The Lyon's Den," a legal drama set in Washington, D.C. Officially, Rob Lowe is the star of the series, playing Jack Turner, an idealistic attorney who reluctantly agrees to assume leadership of a 150-year-old law firm that may be harboring some dark secrets.

Based on the pilot episode NBC recently showed TV writers, however, Chandler easily steals the show as Grant Rashton, a ruthless and cynical member of the firm who quickly becomes Lowe's chief nemesis. If you thought Chandler made a convincing hero in "Early Edition," wait till you see him plotting all sorts of dirty deeds in this "Den."

Q Why did Genie Francis (Laura) leave "General Hospital"? -D.C., Massapequa, N.Y.

Kyle Chandler

A Francis, a veteran "GH" cast member, reportedly wanted to spend more time with her family and became unhappy with the demands of her shooting schedule. Her departure was very amicable, and the door certainly remains open for guest appearances in the future.

Q Do you know if "Angel" will begin airing in syndication any time soon like its sister show, "Buffy the Vampire Slayer"? - Kim Miller, Harrisburg, Pa.

A Yes, TNT will begin airing syndicated repeats of the David Boreanaz vampire drama this fall. The show also recently squeaked by with another season's order for new episodes on The WB Network.

Q Dan Futterman was introduced as Barry, the new love interest for Will on "Will & Grace," but disappeared after only two episodes. What happened? - Christopher J. Koke, Ashland, Ore.

A Nothing. Futterman, who actually appeared in four "Will & Grace" episodes, signed on only for a limited story arc (the actor lives with his family on the East Coast, which is why he left his previous series gig on "Judging Amy"). Unfortunately, reports that he had signed to play a potential love interest for Will were misinterpreted in many quarters to mean he would be playing Barry on a recurring basis, much as Harry Connick Jr. has done in his role as Leo, Grace's husband. That never was intended to be the case with Futterman.

Carey Lowell offers a view of a blind teacher in Lifetime film

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

To share someone else's experience fully, you have to walk in his shoes. Joan Brock learned that the hard way.

The California teacher of the blind didn't expect to get firsthand knowledge of her students' plight, but it came as her own vision faded. Airing Monday, June 16, on Lifetime, the new movie "More Than Meets the Eye: The Joan Brock Story" casts Carey Lowell ("Law & Order") in the title role as the former Joan Beringer, whose first husband (played by Canadian actor Rod Wilson) was diagnosed with cancer as she struggled with her loss of sight.

After his death, the newly blind Joan reluctantly moved in with her parents, along with her young daughter, Joy (Jennifer Pisana). High-school friend Jim Brock (Dylan Walsh, "Congo") came back into Joan's life through her new role as a much-in-demand inspirational speaker, which opened her up to the possibility of marrying again. Janet Amos co-stars as Joan's mother in the film directed by Mike Robe ("Murder Ordained").

Since the film was shot in April, the turnaround to its telecast is unusually tight. Lowell confirms that she had little time for research before production began, "but we had a wonderful technical adviser who was really helpful on all of the blindness aspects. The rest was just getting in there and doing it." Still, Lowell admits that having to portray different degrees of sightlessness - mirroring the decline of Brock's vision - was a fresh challenge.

"Emotionally," the actress says, "you try to think your way through all the stages: 'I don't know that I'm going blind' ... 'I feel like I'm going blind' ... 'OK, now I know I'm going blind' ... 'My God, I'm blind.' Technically, it's really about your line of sight. The camera can make it seem that you're looking right at somebody when you're really not, so you have to make sure your eye line is in the correct place. I was really scared in the beginning that I wouldn't be able to pull it off, but it seems like it worked."

Usually seen portraying self-sufficient women, such as prosecutor Jamie Ross on "Law & Order" and CIA agent Pam Bouvier in the 1989 James Bond movie "Licence to Kill," Lowell allows that she's "never, ever played a role like this. It had me crying all the time and acting really sad, and my biggest fear was that it would get too schmaltzy. I kept saying, 'We can't make this too sentimental, or everyone will get sick of me.' It was a great exercise, though. I kept joking that I came out of retirement to do it, but I really enjoyed myself."

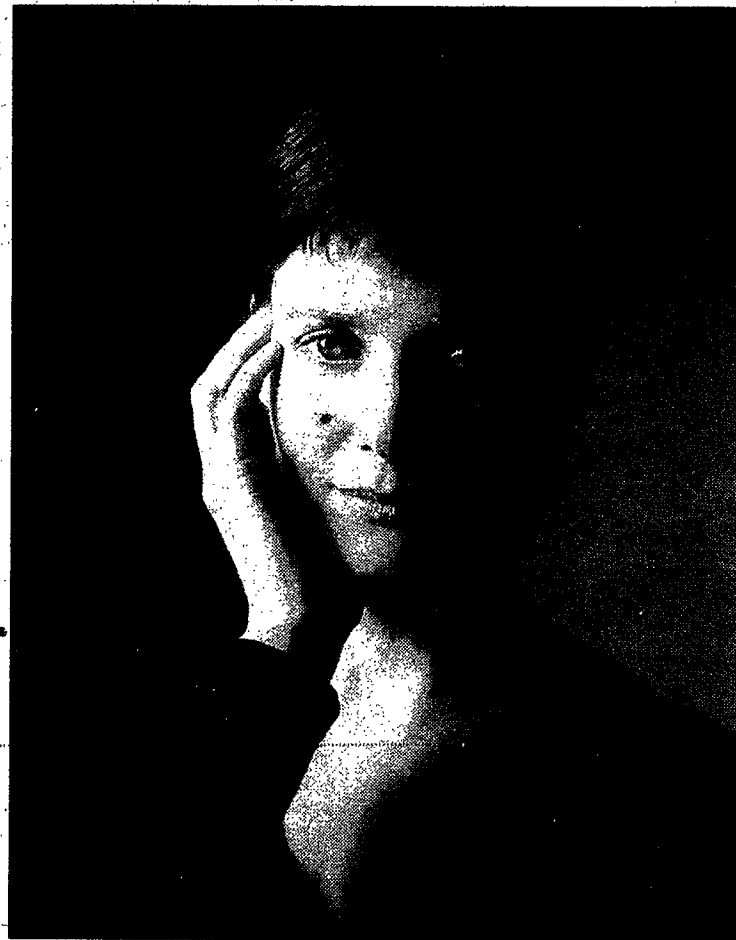

Now wed to longtime love Richard Gere, with whom she has a son (in addition to a daughter from her marriage to actor-producer Griffin Dunne), ex-model Lowell has spent much of this year on "a fun ride" with Gere at events related to his part in the Oscar-winning musical "Chicago." She explains that "More Than Meets the Eye" lured her back to acting because the script "really touched me. It's the story of a remarkable woman, and especially at a time when everything seems so upside-down, it has an important message: You choose how to live your life, no matter what befalls you. You can sink into depression, or you can be happy despite your circumstances."

The real Joan Brock inspired Lowell when she visited the movie's set in Winnipeg. "She's very vivacious and attractive, and just a kind soul," Lowell says. "She didn't really give me any pointers, but we talked about lots of emotional things. She mentioned certain moments in her life when she just fell apart or was able to say to herself, 'Wait a minute. I have to pull it together. I have a daughter, and I need to set an example.' She talked about the things that kept her true to herself."

Lowell's two seasons on "Law & Order" were helpful in prepping her to work fast on "More Than Meets the Eye." She deems her long hours on the NBC series "boot camp for this kind of thing. This schedule had us covering fewer pages of material per day, though it was still a lot. We were able to keep the work under 12 hours a day, which was kind of remarkable, and I don't think we sacrificed any quality. In fact, I wasn't as tired as I thought I would be. I'm much more tired when I'm at home."

Mail from 007 fans still makes its way to Lowell, who reflects, "My only regret about 'Licence to Kill' is that it wasn't hipper. It was the last of the old-fashioned Bonds." Now having done a major role again, Lowell isn't sure which path - if any - she'll take careerwise. "I definitely missed my family while I was away, but it just depends on the material," she says. "There wasn't anything before 'More Than Meets the Eye' that really made me want to get back to acting. We'll just see what comes next."

Carey Lowell ("Law & Order") stars as a teacher of the blind who loses her own eyesight in the new, true drama movie "More Than Meets the Eye: The Joan Brock Story" Monday on Lifetime.

Youngsters strut their stuff on Fox's 'American Juniors'

By Jay Bobbin
© Zap2it

Memo to the first two "American Idols": Watch out - younger would-be stars are nipping at your heels.

The producers of the phenomenally successful talent-contest series have set their sights on the younger crowd with "American Juniors," airing Tuesdays and Wednesdays on Fox.

Like its older sibling, the new series features singers and dancers being subjected to the scrutiny of judges and a viewer vote each Tuesday. But the performers are younger, ages 6 to 13, and the field has been limited to 20. The results will be announced in a second weekly show, which begins Wednesday, June 18, with the five highest-ranked contestants forming a supergroup that, Fox vows, "will take the world by storm." "American Idol" host Ryan Seacrest also presides over "Juniors" starting this week.

Hey, it's possible, considering that first "American Idol" winner Kelly Clarkson's album "Thankful" entered the Billboard chart last month at No. 1. She has broken into the movie world as well, starring with runner-up Justin Guarini in the new musical comedy "From Justin to Kelly."

NBC recently aired "America's Most Talented Kid," but "American Juniors" co-producer Nigel Lythgoe isn't worried about having his show's thunder stolen. "There have been talent searches forever," he says, "but 'American Idol' has sort of defined the genre. If anything is successful, it's going to do that on its own merits, not because something else was or wasn't on."

"American Juniors" differs from "American Idol" in some kid-friendly ways, one being the absence of often snarky Simon Cowell or anyone like him. "There will be judges," Lythgoe says, "and they will give marks - school grades like B-plus, A-minus, etc. - but we don't need anyone being mean, which is the reality of the age group we're dealing with here."

Another reality the producers must deal with is the antics of pushy stage parents. "You will see moms and dads and hear their comments, and I'm already amazed at the levels those have reached," Lythgoe says. "I've got moms on tape swearing like troopers in front of their kids, and the kids' eyes are down to the ground. There's going to be a lot of 'bleeps' here."

Still, the approach of "American Juniors" keeps the young performers' feelings in mind. "We're not voting people off," Lythgoe says. "Rather, America is voting kids into the band we're forming. Once we get our final 10, the top vote-getter will be put in. That person will come back the next week and sing a song, then when two people have been chosen, they'll do a duet. When there are three, they'll sing as a trio, and so on. Once they're in, they can't be voted off ... so if people don't like the combinations, tough."

Lythgoe hopes those teamings will inspire music-industry pros to join the "American Juniors" cause. The show is slated to continue right through the fall, until the third season of "American Idol" is ready to begin next winter, and Lythgoe says, "It would be great to get songwriters to start writing for (the selected youngsters), because we want an album out there as soon as we can get one."

"Kelly Clarkson's 'Thankful' was a sort of vindication, purely and simply because some people had said, 'You've got to get her album out immediately.' When it finally came out and hit No. 1, that was great."

Young hopefuls sing their hearts out for a chance to be a part of a supergroup during "American Juniors," a talent-search series airing Tuesdays and Wednesdays on Fox. In the tradition established by "American Idol," viewers can vote for their favorite performers immediately after the Tuesday broadcast.

WNBA's Leslie embraces life as a role model

By George Dickie
© Zap2it

When Lisa Leslie first signed up to play in the WNBA, she thought she was joining just another summer league.

"I thought we'd play for three months and we'd probably wear, like, T-shirts or reversible jerseys or something," says the 30-year-old center, who can be seen in action when her Los Angeles Sparks take on the Seattle Storm Thursday, June 19, on ESPN2. "They'd probably open up a gym and there would probably be a hundred people - that was the concept in my mind. So I was like, 'OK, sure, I can play in that league, because it's only for the summer, and I can model in the offseason.' And that's what I did."

"But," she laughs, "after I signed my contract, I realized it was so much bigger than what I had expected, and we were playing in the same arenas that the men played in - we were going to play at the (Great Western) Forum; we actually had real uniforms - and it was huge. So I totally was not prepared my first year and had no idea of how to even be a professional basketball player. But I definitely learned."

Indeed she has, having led the Sparks to the last two league championships while being named the league's Most Valuable Player in 2001 and earning championship series MVP honors in 2001 and 2002. She is the league's most recognizable - if not its best - player and certainly is its most productive center.

Over the course of a career that began with the Sparks in 1997 (the same year the league commenced play), Leslie has averaged 17.5 points, 9.5 rebounds and over two blocks per game, and she is the WNBA's all-time leading scorer.

But despite all the accolades and awards, Leslie appreciates the privilege that comes with fame and tries to stay humble. She also tries to remain accessible to her fans, even though she admits that can sometimes be difficult.

"When you want to do things - like for example, go to Universal Studios or Disneyland with my family - I'm thinking, 'Oh yeah, let's go,'" she says. "We're all going to go, but then they're totally interrupted, because every two steps I'm taking somebody wants my autograph or they want to take a picture, and now I feel like Mickey Mouse. I'm like Minnie Mouse - taking pictures with the people. (I feel) like I'm not allowing my family to have fun."

The best way to deal with such intrusions, Leslie has learned, is to not let it bother her. "I can't be upset by anything like that," she says, "because if I can make people happy or smile and touch their lives in different ways, that's a part of my job. I mean, I know some people don't want to be role models as athletes or entertainers, but I do because I remember what it's like being a little kid."

In that regard, Leslie is always accommodating of her youthful admirers. "I never want people to feel like I think I'm untouchable or anything like that," she says. "It's a blessing to come in contact, especially, with kids. I think that's probably more the highlight for me, even though the adults sometimes get a little nuts. I never say 'no' to the kids."

While Leslie readily accepts the responsibility that comes with being a role model, she admits she has one of her own. "My mom is my role model," she says, "because my mom was a single mom with three daughters and she was a truck driver. My mom drove an 18-wheeler truck across country to support our family. It's a very masculine job, however my mom keeps her nails polished and she always wore lipstick and she worked hard. She was a role model for me because it just showed me that I could do anything that I wanted to do, regardless of us not having a dad and being a girl, that I could do whatever I wanted to if I set my mind to it and wrote down my goals. And that's what I did."

The fashion model, graduate student and aspiring entrepreneur also wrote something else down - repeatedly. "I used to sign my name as if I was giving an autograph," Leslie says. "And my mom was like, 'Who are you going to give your name to?' And I was like, 'I haven't decided what I'm going to be successful at yet, but I know that whatever it is, I'm going to give an autograph.' So I would practice doing my Ls, like Laverne from 'Laverne & Shirley,' just these huge Ls all over the place. So, who knew it would be basketball?"

"U.S. Open, Final Round" Sunday, June 15 (NBC, 1:30 p.m. ET): The final round of a major always presents a gut check for the contenders. Who will earn pass and fail grades today during the U.S. Open's last 18 holes (assuming no playoff)? One pro who has felt both euphoria and pain on a golf Sunday is Mike Weir, who earned his first major title in this year's Masters. He undoubtedly learned from his experience in the '99 PGA Championship, when he shot a final-round 80 after beginning the day tied for the lead.

"Chicago Cubs at Cincinnati Reds" Monday, June 16 (ESPN, 7 p.m. ET): The Great American Ball Park in Cincinnati, where the Reds host the Cubs for four games, has been great for the home team. Like most new parks, it's a hitter's haven, and Reds' sluggers Adam Dunn and Austin Kearns are among the NL leaders in home runs. It's also been great for the visitors, since Cincy's pitchers have given up the Majors' most runs. In April, the Cubs scored a whopping 37 runs against Reds pitching in three straight games.

"Lennox Lewis vs. Kirk Johnson, Heavyweights" Saturday, June 21 (HBO, 10 p.m. ET): WBC heavyweight champion Lennox Lewis shakes off the rust to defend his title against Kirk Johnson from the Staples Center in Los Angeles. Lewis' last bout was just over a year ago when he pounded Mike Tyson, and now the younger Johnson gets his chance to knock Lewis from his perch. The opening bout is a scheduled 10-round heavyweight tilt featuring contenders Vitali Klitschko and Cedric Boswell.

Sunday Best Bets

7 p.m. on 38-WB

Charmed

Needing a new leader after theirs is killed by a demon (guest star Jaimz Woolvett, "Unforgiven"), three wood nymphs make their way to San Francisco in "Nymphs Just Wanna Have Fun." After they convert Paige (Rose McGowan) into one of their own, all of them become the demon's prisoners. Piper and Phoebe (Holly Marie Combs, Alyssa Milano) set out to rescue the nymphs before the demon gets powers from the Spring of Life.

7 p.m. and DSC

Walking With Cavemen

From the series that also yielded "Walking With Dinosaurs" and "Walking With Prehistoric Beasts," this new two-hour special merges dramatic recreations and animatronics to bring ancient beings to life. Viewers are sent back 100,000 generations to the era of cave dwellers who fought off dinosaurs while hunting for basic necessities of survival. South Africa and Iceland are among the locations.

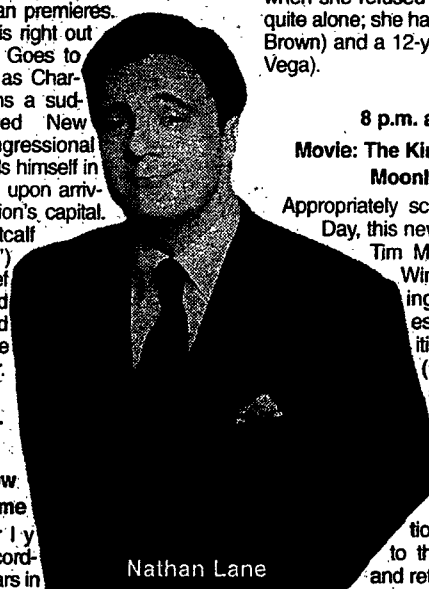

7:30 p.m. on 4-CBS

Charlie Lawrence

Nathan Lane gives series work another try as this comedy about an ex-TV star turned politician premieres. The premise is right out of "Mr. Smith Goes to Washington," as Charlie (Lane) wins a suddenly vacated New Mexico congressional seat, then finds himself in over his head upon arriving in the nation's capital. Laurie Metcalf ("Roseanne") plays his chief of staff; Ted McGinley and Stephanie Faracy co-star.

8 p.m. on 4-CBS

Movie: Follow the Stars Home
Kimberly Williams ("According to Jim") stars in this weepy 2001 drama as Dianne, a single mom struggling to raise a daughter with severe disabilities. Despite having no husband — the dad walked out when she refused to abort — she's not quite alone; she has her own mom (Blair Brown) and a 12-year-old helper (Alexa Vega).

Nathan Lane

8 p.m. and HALL

Movie: The King and Queen of Moonlight Bay

Appropriately scheduled on Father's Day, this new drama movie casts Tim Matheson ("The West Wing") as a hard-drinking handyman long estranged from his visiting teenage daughter (Kristen Bell), who spends a summer getting to know him — or trying to. She alternately succeeds and fails in penetrating his emotional shell, leading her to think about giving up and returning home.

It's time to think about staying cool!

Soap Talk

Soap gains another passionate character

By Candace Havens
© Zap2it

As the new girl in town, Sydney Valentine (Alisa Reyes) will be stirring up big trouble on NBC's "Passions." Her goal will be to reside at the top of the Billboard charts, and she'll do whatever it takes to get there.

"Sydney, or Syd, as she prefers to be called, is a young, beautiful, talented and career-driven singer," says creator and head writer James E. Reilly. "Hooking up with Chad Harris, the newest up-and-coming music producer is a great career move. ... The fact that she finds him hot is just icing on the cake."

Reyes' first airdate on the show is July 22, and if "Passions" fans think the actress looks familiar, they're right. She played Kelly in January and February of 2002. She's also been a regular on "Boston Public," and does the voice of LaCienega in the Disney Channel animated series "The Proud Family."

Speaking of familiar faces, Real Andrews (ex-Marcus Taggart) left "General Hospital" to star in "As the World Turns." He plays Walker Daniels, a forensic pathologist.

Andrews is the third ABC soap star to jump ship and move to CBS daytime in the last year or so. The other two are Cady McClain (ex-Dixie, "All My Children"), who plays Rosanna Cabot, and Roger Howarth (Todd Manning, "One Life to Live"), who recently joined "ATWT."

Dear Candace: Is it true that Adrienne Frantz, who plays Amber on "The Bold and the Beautiful," may leave the show?

I have to tell you that when she first came on, I didn't like the character at all. She always made so much trouble for everyone, and was just after people's money. Now, she is one of my favorites. Please, tell me the rumors aren't true. I hate it when my favorites leave. -Pauline Thompson via the Internet.

Dear Reader: Frantz's contract is up in July, and she is in negotiations.

There are several Internet rumors that she wanted to leave to work on film and prime-time television, but the execs at "B&B" work with the cast so they can pursue other projects.

American Juniors

Things start getting serious as the "American Idol" spinoff moves from the audition phase to vote time. The 20 semifinalists between the ages of 6 and 13 perform, with viewers asked to call in afterward and show support for the young talents they most want to see land spots in a musical group of five. In other words, hopefuls are voted "in" instead of "out." The results will be announced on Wednesday's episode.

7 p.m. on 38-WB

Gilmore Girls

An extended flashback offers insight into the day Lorelai (Lauren Graham) gave birth to Rory (Alexis Bledel) in "Dear Emily and Richard," written by series creator Amy Sherman-Palladino. The teenage Lorelai (played by Chelsea Brummet) upsets her parents (Kelly Bishop, Edward Herrmann) with her pregnancy and her decision not to marry the baby's father, Christopher (portrayed as a youth by Phillip Glenn Van Dyke).

7 p.m. on 19-PBS

Nova

"Hitler's Lost Sub" chronicles the efforts of a team of divers to solve the mysteries surrounding a German U-boat discovered off the coast of New Jersey in 1991. How did it get there? How did it escape detection all those years? What sent it to its watery grave? And who was on it? It takes six years, and three divers lose their lives, but the answers finally surface. The two-hour program includes interviews with several survivors.

8 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

Keen Eddie

If Eddie (Mark Valley) think he's already had enough of a culture clash by being a United States police detective in London, he's in for another dose in the new

episode "Achtung Baby."

He's assigned to act as bodyguard to a German opera star, who isn't exactly the model of cooperation as Eddie tries to ward off a stalker with a murderous bent.

8 p.m. on 38-WB

Smallville

Clark (Tom Welling) and his Earth parents (John Schneider, Annette O'Toole) have done a pretty good job of concealing his special powers, but "Duplicity" lets someone else in on their secret. It's Pete (Sam Jones III), who stumbles across the spaceship sent into a cornfield by the recent Smallville tornado. To his dismay, Clark can't be sure that Pete can keep the information private.

9 p.m. on 26-ABC

NYPD Blue

The murder of a young auxiliary cop forces Sipowicz and Clark (Dennis Franz, Mark-Paul Gosselaar) to investigate fellow officers in "Below the Belt." Though they don't want to admit one of them could be the killer, they're obligated to follow through with the probe. McDowell and Ortiz (Charlotte Ross, Jacqueline Obradors) are sent to a street overrun by criminal acts, including a shooting.

9 p.m. on 19-PBS

P.O.V.

The series of documentaries opens its 16th season as "Flag Wars" profiles Olde Towne East, a Columbus, Ohio, neighborhood where often-improvised black residents are trying to hold onto houses that realtors and gay homebuyers see as fixer-upper investments. Tensions largely generated by prejudice come out into the open at public meetings between the factions. This film was funded in part by the new Diverse Voices Project.

Wednesday Best Bets

3 p.m. and MTV

Making the Band II

The second season of the reality show, which yielded the group O-Town the first time around, resumes with new episodes. Sara Stokes, Rodney "Chopper" Hill, Dylan John, Lloyd Mathis, Frederick Watson and Lynese Wiley have beaten out all other contenders to become the members of a new hip-hop group guided by music icon Sean "P. Diddy" Combs. Teamwork is necessary, but not always easy, for the new bandmates and housemates.

7 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

That '70s Show

While her father (Don Stark) is away, Donna (Laura Prepon) takes the opportunity to sample what marriage to Eric (Topher Grace) would be like in "When the Levee Breaks." The young couple gets a surprising education when they cohabit, especially when their friends think they'll party it up at Donna's house. Kitty (Debra Jo Rupp) thinks a ring intended for someone else is for her.

Boarding House: North Shore

MTV already has launched "Surf Girls," but the premiere of this reality series offers surfers of both genders. The show puts seven contenders in the Vans Triple Crown of Surfing together in a beach house on Oahu, Hawaii, then lets cameras follow them day and night in the style of "The Real World." The participants aren't just average surfers, either: Each has won a championship or is ranked among the best in the world.

Great Performances

"Dance in America: Lar Lubovitch's Othello From San Francisco Ballet" offers the innovative choreographer's take on Shakespeare's classic about love, power and betrayal. Desmond Richardson plays Othello, who is married to Desdemona (Yuan Yuan Tan) and targeted by his scheming ensign, Iago (Parrish Maynard). The original music score is by recent Oscar winner Elliot Goldenthal ("Frida").

7 p.m. on 54-UPN

Enterprise

Claustrophobia is inevitable for the Enterprise crew members, and quite possibly for viewers, in "The Catwalk." Everyone on board must cram into a maintenance shaft for protection from radioactivity during a lethal storm. As if that isn't enough trouble, aliens invade the seemingly deserted ship, prepared to start its systems — which could kill Archer (Scott Bakula) and the others sequestered with him.

Sean Combs

7:30 p.m. on HBO

Sex and the City

The Emmy-winning comedy ended its fifth season — abbreviated because of star Sarah Jessica Parker's pregnancy — with "I Love a Charade," which gives Carrie (Parker) hope for romance. Charlotte (Kristin Davis) isn't happy when her latest affair becomes known, and Miranda (Cynthia Nixon) again questions the nature of her relationship with Steve (David Eigenberg).

8 p.m. on 8-FOX on 25-FOX

Paradise Hotel

The people involved in this new reality series can't be sure when they're checking out of a posh resort. The reason? This premiere explains that one of the 12 guests will be voted out by the others each week, with a studio audience and the remaining guests choosing who gets to take his or her place.

8:30 p.m. on 19-PBS

Clint Eastwood: Out of the Shadows

Clint Eastwood is one of a mere fistful of actors who have broken Hollywood's rules and gotten away with it. He made a successful transition from movies to TV and back. He played heroes who didn't always wear white hats, and he was both actor and director before it was cool. Even if you're not a fan of his now, you'll become an admirer from watching this "American Masters" special narrated by Morgan Freeman.

9 p.m. on 6-NBC

Law & Order

An off-duty policewoman is shot, causing Briscoe and Green (Jerry Orbach, Jesse L. Martin) to fear her assailant was targeting anyone in a cop's uniform, in "Suicide Box." The investigation reveals she deliberately was targeted, because of her link to a black man's murder. Gregory Hines guest stars as an attorney who plays to — or simply plays — the media while representing the defendant.

7 p.m. on 13-ABC

Movie: 28 Days

Liberal doses of humor keep this 2000 movie about getting sober from getting too somber. Sandra Bullock stars as a party-happy writer who goes to rehab to avoid prison after showing up drunk at her sister's wedding and wrecking a limo, among other things. She meets an interesting assortment of fellow addicts; complicating her efforts to clean up her act is her boyfriend (Dominic West). Diane Ladd and Steve Buscemi co-star.

7 p.m. on 38-WB

Movie: Dumb & Dumber

You can't fault this 1994 comedy for false advertising. It's dumb, dumb, dumb — not that there's anything wrong with that. Jim Carrey and Jeff Daniels play goofballs who head for the mountains to do the right thing by returning a pile of cash to the beautiful woman (Lauren Holly) who left it behind. That makes it a road picture in the Hope-Crosby mold, but with a lot more toilet humor.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

Will & Grace

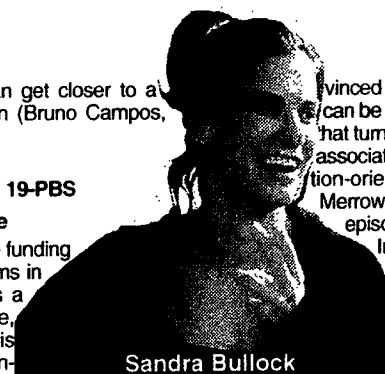

Will (Eric McCormack) fears the new and improved Barry (Dan Futterman) is taking his place in Jack's (Sean Hayes) life in "Fagmation Part Four: The Guy Who Loved Me." Karen and Rosario (Megan Mullally, Shelley Morrison) trade places so Karen can get closer to a handsome custodian (Bruno Campos, "Jesse").

8 p.m. on 19-PBS

Frontline

In an era when the funding of education programs in the United States is a hot-button issue, entrepreneur Chris Whittle remains convinced that school systems can be run like corporations that turn profits. Produced in association with the education-oriented series "The Merrow Report," the new episode "Public Schools, Inc." takes a fresh look at Whittle's plan to determine whether it is workable within current boundaries.

Fastlane

When a criminal (guest star Treach) recruits hired killers to target Los Angeles police officers, Van and Deaq (Peter Facinelli, Bill Bel-lamy) try to stop the scheme from the inside in Part 1 of "Defense." Back at headquarters, Billie (Tiffani Thiessen) squares off against an Internal Affairs officer (guest star Jay Mohr, "Pay It Forward"), who wants to dismantle the Candy Store. The conclusion immediately follows.

Movie: Live and Let Die

Roger Moore made his debut as James Bond in this 1973 adventure. The British secret agent goes to New York, New Orleans and the Caribbean while tailing a United Nations diplomat (Yaphet Kotto) apparently linked to the deaths of other spies. Jane Seymour had her first major screen role as mystical fortune-teller Solitaire.

8:30 p.m. on 38-WB

Grounded for Life

Sean and Claudia (Donal Logue, Megyn Price) try to teach Lily (Lynsey Bartilson) financial responsibility by making her get a job in "Welcome to the Working Week." Eddie (Kevin Fitzgerald, Corrigan) schemes to even the score after a newspaper reviewer gives The Red Boot a negative write-up.

9 p.m. on 6-NBC

Law & Order: Special Victims Unit

A teenage rape victim's suicide attempt prompts Benson and Stabler (Mariska Hargitay, Christopher Meloni) to seek her assailants in "Resilience." The police detectives use DNA evidence to track down the prime suspects, who reveal sordid information that casts suspicion on the victim's family.

9 p.m. on BRAV

Movie: Dressed to Kill

Writer-director Brian De Palma's penchant for offbeat story-telling is evident in this 1980 chiller. Angie Dickinson has a relatively brief role as a housewife who pays a high price for her promiscuity early in the story. Michael Caine stars as her psychiatrist, who isn't prone to helping the police. That leaves the victim's son and a prostitute (Keith Gordon, Nancy Allen) to find the killer. Dennis Franz co-stars.

Saturday Best Bets

6:30 p.m. on USA

Movie: Cape Fear

Martin Scorsese directed this 1991 remake of the 1962 thriller about an ex-con seeking revenge on the attorney who compromised his defense 14 years earlier. Unlike the earlier work, Scorsese's version blurs the lines between good and evil, evoking sympathy for the ex-con (Robert De Niro), and questioning the lawyer's (Nick Nolte) integrity. Gregory Peck and Robert Mitchum, who starred in the 1962 version, have small roles.

7 p.m. on 26-ABC on 13-ABC

Movie: Amistad

Steven Spielberg won critical acclaim for his 1997 treatment of an 1839 uprising aboard a slave ship, but the film earned only a handful of nominations and no awards at the Oscars. One of those nominations went to Anthony Hopkins for his portrayal of John Quincy Adams, whose riveting courtroom speech on the slaves' behalf is a highlight of the film. West African-born Djimon Hounsou stars as Cinque, leader of the revolt.

7 p.m. on 6-NBC

Child Stars: Then and Now

This new special, narrated by Malcolm-Jamal Warner ("The Cosby Show"), catches up with 15 individuals who were popular with audiences when they were young actors. Among them: Emmanuel Lewis ("Webster," "The Surreal Life"), Butch Patrick ("The Munsters"), Jason Hervey ("The Wonder Years") and the former "Lost in Space" children.

8 p.m. on 6-NBC

The Cosby Show: A Look Back

Bill Cosby, Phylicia Rashad, Malcolm-Jamal Warner

Malcolm-Jamal Warner

Warner and Keshia Knight Pulliam are among the cast members reminiscing about one of the top series of the 1980s in this special from 2002. Noticeably absent is Lisa Bonet, who maintained that she didn't "feel the love" when she was approached about participating. However, her image is seen in the many clips from the original show.

9 p.m. on TBS

Movie: Ronin

Director John Frankenheimer's ("The Manchurian Candidate") last theatrical film was this fine, European-flavored 1998 melodrama. A mysterious briefcase is pursued by several Cold War veterans. Robert De Niro and Jean Reno play two of the former spies trying to retrieve the container. The international cast also includes Jonathan Pryce and Natascha McElhone ("Solaris").

(Ratings for each film begin with a "star" rating - one star meaning "poor," four meaning "excellent" - followed by the Motion Picture Association of America rating, and then by a family-viewing guide, the key for which appears below.)

STARTING THIS WEEK (New releases):

"JUST MARRIED": Their real-life romance recently ended, but Ashton Kutcher ("That '70s Show") and Brittany Murphy ("8 Mile") became a couple while playing newlyweds in this light but enjoyable comedy. The bride and groom go to Europe to honeymoon, and her parents - determined to break up the marriage while it's young - send her ex-boyfriend (Christian Kane, "Angel") after them to sway her from her new spouse. David Moscow ("Big") co-stars. DVD extras: audio commentary by Kutcher, Murphy and writer-director Shawn Levy; "making-of" documentaries; deleted scenes. ** (PG-13: AS, P)

"NARC": Tom Cruise co-produced this intense, genuinely gritty melodrama casting Jason Patric - who was on similar turf many years earlier in "Rush" - as a Detroit police officer restored to undercover duty following an on-the-job tragedy. He's paired with a friend (a superb Ray Liotta) of a slain narcotics cop to solve the drug case on which the dead man was working. Chi McBride ("Boston Public") and rapper Busta Rhymes also are in director Joe Carnahan's cast. DVD extras: theatrical trailer; audio commentary by Carnahan and editor John Gilroy; "making-of" documentaries. *** (R: AS, P, GV)

"DELIVER US FROM EVA": As nice as it can be to have concerned relatives, one as meddlesome as this mildly amusing comedy's Eva Dandridge (Gabrielle Union, "Bring It On") can be a real problem. Eva doesn't know when to butt out of the lives of her sisters (Essence Atkins, Robinne Lee, Meagan Good), so her brothers-in-law hire a man (actor-rapper LL Cool J) to keep her romantically occupied. He falls for her, complicating the arrangement. DVD extras: theatrical trailer; audio commentary by director Gary Hardwick; "making-of" documentary; deleted scenes; two music videos. ** (R: AS, P)

"DRACULA II: ASCENSION": You can't keep a good vampire down, as several medical students learn first-hand when they discover the body of the Transylvanian count (Rutger Hauer, "Blade Runner") in this predictable thriller. They're offered a fortune to drain Dracula's blood and turn it over to a would-be auctioneer, but a vampire killer's interference may jinx the deal ... if the kids don't feel fangs in their necks, first. Jason Scott Lee, Jason London and Roy Scheider also star. DVD extras: audio commentary by director Patrick Lussier, screenwriter Joel Soisson and makeup-effects supervisor Gary Tunnicliffe; behind-the-scenes footage. ** (R: AS, P, GV)

"ME WITHOUT YOU": Michelle Williams ("Dawson's Creek") adopts a different look and dialect in director and co-writer Sandra Goldbacher's nostalgic yet truthful portrait of friends Holly and Marina (Williams and Anna Friel) as they grow up in 1970s London. They vow to stay close to each other forever, but that agreement is jeopardized by Holly's later involvement with Marina's brother (Oliver Milburn). Trudie

Styler, the wife of music icon Sting, co-stars. *** (R: AS, N, P)

"STARGATE SG-1 - SEASON THREE": Spun off from the "Stargate" feature film, the series version has had TV lives on Showtime and Sci-Fi Channel, and this boxed DVD set compiles the third year's episodes on five discs. Also a producer of the show, Richard Dean Anderson ("MacGyver") stars as Col. Jack O'Neill, the leader of an exploration team that travels back and forth through an ancient "stargate" to other worlds. Co-stars include Michael Shanks and Amanda Tapping. DVD extras: interviews with cast and crew members; "making-of" documentaries; behind-the-scenes footage. ** (Not rated: AS, P, V)

COMING SOON (Upcoming releases):

"DARK BLUE" (June 24): At the time of the Rodney King incident in 1991 Los Angeles, a corrupt cop (Kurt Russell) alarms his rookie partner (Scott Speedman). (R: AS, P, V)

"THE HOURS" (June 24): Recent Oscar winner Nicole Kidman portrays Virginia Woolf, whose writing impacts two women (Julianne Moore, Meryl Streep) of later times. (PG-13: AS, P)

"KANGAROO JACK" (June 24): In Australia, two pals (Jerry O'Connell, Anthony Anderson) pursue a kangaroo that has made off with the small fortune they were carrying. (PG: P, V)

"PUNCH-DRUNK LOVE" (June 24): A toilet-plunger salesman and a businesswoman (Adam Sandler, Emily Watson) have a romance despite their respective quirks. (R: AS, P)

"GANGS OF NEW YORK" (July 1): Director Martin Scorsese's drama of rival 19th-century street gangs stars Leonardo DiCaprio, Daniel Day-Lewis and Cameron Diaz. (R: AS, P, V)

PBS' new twist on an old tale: Othello leaps to life and death

By Jacqueline Cutler

Alone in his family's den, a 10-year-old boy from Queens was channel-surfing. He came upon a PBS special starring the late legends of ballet, Margot Fonteyn and Rudolph Nureyev.

"I was so enamored with his performance," Desmond Richardson recalls. "I didn't know what he was doing. I just knew it was something I was connecting with. I knew there was something about his raw energy and his beauty and making movement so sculptural. I did not connect all of those things at the time ... I just felt the joy."

Now one of the world's premier danseurs, Richardson spreads such joy in a special presentation of PBS' "Dance in America" Wednesday, June 18 (check local listings). He dances the lead in "Great Performances: Lar Lubovitch's Othello From San Francisco Ballet."

Richardson's turn as one of the most tortured heroes in literature showcases sculptured movement. At rest, his muscles make him seem more a romanticized creation placed on stage than a performer currently in the Broadway show "The Look of Love." Then he breaks from the pose, moving with powerful grace.

This production by modern dance choreographer Lubovitch, with music by recent Academy Award winner Elliot Goldenthal, is not a typical ballet. Those who expect florid Liszt waltzes or dramatic Tchaikovsky strings, be prepared: Goldenthal's post-modern score often is discordant, but always interesting. The dance itself has some familiar trappings of traditional ballet, but there are many modern innovations such as arms akimbo, flexed feet and lifts more common in ice-skating rinks than on ballet stages. This makes sense considering that Lubovitch also choreographed ice dances for Dorothy Hamill and Peggy Fleming.

"I wanted to create something of beauty," Lubovitch says, "and the result is for people to take it as they wish."

This show is a testament as to why PBS is important. Someone who paid for a ticket anticipating the usual might be upset. But seeing such an innovative retelling of an old tale for free is nothing short of wonderful.

The most unusual casting is that of Desdemona. Yuan Yuan Tan, an exquisite ballerina with flawless technique and interpretation, projects innocence and total love for her husband, Othello. Tan is Asian, and, in Shakespeare's play, the character is "the fair Desdemona," so usually a white blonde portrays her.

Explaining his choice, Lubovitch says, "The selection is based on the best dancer for the part, the person with the most exemplary physical qualities, that's one answer. This is not Shakespeare's 'Othello.' This is Lar Lubovitch's 'Othello.' If you are going to look for Shakespeare's 'Othello,' you won't find it. You will find the characters in Shakespeare's 'Othello,' and you will find the basic thesis.

Indeed, the three-act ballet, taped last season at San Francisco's War Memorial Opera House, follows the well-known plot. Set in 15th-century Venice, Othello, a noble Moor, weds Desdemona. Othello's aide, Iago (Parrish Maynard), and his wife, Emilia (Kalita Waldo), Desdemona's lady-in-waiting, celebrate the marriage with Cassio (Gonzalo Garcia) and others.

Othello gives his wife a handkerchief at their wedding, and Tan's dance with the flimsy cloth is so fluid, she seems to be made of liquid.

By Act 2, Desdemona and the villagers wait for Othello's ship to come in. George Tsypin's set is terrific, especially as the ship comes onstage, and Goldenthal's music adds a frenetic new level to the standard tarantella. A local woman, Bianca (Lorena Feijoo), dances a wild tarantella, and cajoles everyone into joining her.

While dancing, Desdemona loses her precious hankie. Emilia, Iago's long-suffering wife, finds it, only to lose it to her conniving husband. Iago uses it to falsely convince Othello that Desdemona and Cassio are lovers.

In Act 3, when no good can possibly come of all this jealousy and rage, Othello and Iago dance an unusually bold and sensual pas de deux. More traditional ballets often feature one man dancing then another. While those often feel like challenges as to who can leap higher or spin faster, this is a dance together.

"We had a wonderful feeling together," Richardson says. "We are both so sinewy and muscular."

As expected, Iago's treachery begets tragedy. As Goldenthal says, "With Desdemona's murder, everyone knows what is going to happen. For me, and for Lar, we wanted something transcendental and beautiful. It is almost to say if you are Desdemona and you are that much in love with Othello, and you have to die, at least you are dying in his hands ... It is kind of twisted, but that is what we were after."

Goldenthal adds that he was aiming "to create a world that was spiraling out of control." He succeeds brilliantly.

As for the boy who discovered ballet on PBS, and has since toured with the world's great ballet companies, this production could make him the model for others. "If I can make it accessible for one person, it's all good for me," Richardson says. " 'Dance in America' has allowed me to be more than I was, and I thank them for the programming. It does touch so many people in so many walks of life ... I wish them continued success. Hopefully, I can be part of that."

Desmond Richardson has the title role of the noble Moor in "Great Performances: Lar Lubovitch's Othello From San Francisco Ballet" Wednesday on PBS (check local listings).
